Don't make it so easy on thieves

Police entreating car owners to lock doors

By JAYNE W. MILLER
WILMINGTON/TEWKSBURY - Local police, in a joint effort, struck back at the rash of car breaks of recent months when they arrested two suspects the week before Christmas.

In the wee hours of December 19, a resident of Avalon Oaks West, on Salem Road in Wilmington, called police after noticing two suspects walking up and down the rows of cars in the parking lot, breaking into those not locked. Wilmington Police responded to the scene, nabbing one, while Tewksbury Police picked up the other a little while later coming out of the woods over the Tewksbury town line. A backpack belonging to one of the suspects was filled with GPS units and pocket change, said Wilmington Detective Tom Miller.

"Lock your cars and please don't leave expensive valuables in there. It is just so tempting for thieves," Miller told the Crier. "Car breaks are very popular; it's an easy way for them to get the things they are looking for."

Boogaloo Swamis to spice up Jazz Night

By DANIEL R. CHALMERS
WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Memorial Library will be hosting the Boogaloo Swamis, a Cajun and zydeco band, on Friday, February 12 as part of 2010's After Hours at the Library concert series. The Swamis will be the first of four jazz-themed concerts scheduled to take place throughout the year.

The Boogaloo Swamis feature Mickey Bones, a famed musician who has played and appeared with numerous music ensembles over the years. The Swamis are a Boston-based group that have received positive reviews from publications such as the Boston Globe and The Patriot Ledger, as noted on the band's website. Wilmington Library Director, Christina Stewart, confirmed that tickets will cost $15 each. They will go on sale to the Friends of the Library on January 16, and they will be available to the general public on January 21. Stewart added that anyone may become a member of the Friends between now and the date of the concert in order to gain access to the pre-sale. She noted that the special pre-sale opportunity for the Friends of the Library was in order to show the library's appreciation for their support and generous assistance in subsidizing many of the

Tresca adds building to site plan

Revisions due next month, Planning Board decision expected in March

By JAYNE W. MILLER
WILMINGTON - The planning board meeting Tuesday night again received a sizeable audience as the proposal for a concrete operation at 90 Eames Street was continued. The applicant, Tresca Brothers, for the Glen Falls

Lehigh Cement site plan application, revisited concerns made by the Planning Board at previous meetings, but representatives of a competing company again appeared skeptical that the plan will work at all. Revisions are due to the planning board in advance of the continued hearing set for February 2, although the board will not likely vote until March.

Part of the issue is that the proposed concrete plant sits within a groundwater protection zone, making storm water runoff a major consideration of the site plan. The latest proposal by the applicant brings in a "pre-engineered" metal building, with two, large, overhead doors at each end allowing for entrance and egress of mixer

Sidelinker's dogs

By LARZ F. NEILSON
WILMINGTON - Back in the 1950s, residents of the Silver Lake area had a dog problem, and it wasn't something they could take to the police. The man keeping the dogs was the sergeant on the Wilmington

Police Dept. Talbot Sidelinker was on the police department for about 30 years, retiring in 1964. He had gone to sea as a young man, working for the American Hawaiian Steamship Co. He returned home in the 1930s and became a police officer. He was a good one, and he became Wilmington's first police sergeant.

Sidelinker lived at Silver Lake, at the corner of Glen

Political season begins

Nomination papers available

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - With a new year comes a new town election, and it appears one race is already heating up as new candidates and incumbents have begun pulling nomination papers.

Two Selectmen seats are up for reelection this year, occupied by Louis Cimaglia and current Board of Selectmen Chairman Michael Newhouse. Newhouse pulled papers Tuesday morning. Resident Mark Nelson pulled papers for a seat on the Board of Selectman Monday morning, the earliest possible date to do so for the April election. Nelson has not previously served on the Board, but has been a candidate. As of press time, Cimaglia had not yet pulled, according to

Get your flu shot here!

H1N1 vaccines available Sat, Mon

By JAYNE W. MILLER

WILMINGTON - Public Health Director Shelly Newhouse wants residents to know that the H1N1 flu vaccine will be available later this week and early next week in two clinics geared at adults.

With a flu season marred by spotty vaccine distribution nationwide for both H1N1 and seasonal flu, cities and towns have been holding flu clinics whenever the vaccines become available.

Two H1N1 clinics, the first open to the general public in Wilmington, are set for this Saturday, 10:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at Town Hall for those aged 19 to 64, and the second scheduled for Monday,

Sidelinker's dogs

Road, Main Street and Williams Avenue. Like many properties near the lake, his did not have a large lot, about a third of an acre. Just big enough for a garden or maybe a swimming pool - but not a kennel.

Sidelinker was raising Doberman Pinschers, trying to breed them for show, dreaming of dog food endorsements. The yard was soon full of dogs, dozens of dogs.

Youngsters in the area soon learned that a stick or a bit of food thrown over the fence could produce a doggone racket. With the proximity of the lake, the sound would carry for some distance. For young people in the area, that was some fun, especially after midnight.

For the neighbors, it was not fun. In the fall of 1951, they complained to the selectmen, who held a hearing and then made a recommendation to the County Commissioners that the kennel license be revoked. Sidelinker promptly appealed.

The "dog laws" of Massachusetts in those days were entirely contained in Chapter 29 of the Massachusetts General Laws. Town Manager Dean Cushing sat down and studied the laws thoroughly. A few weeks later, he told the selectmen that he knew Chapter 29, "inside-out." The dogs would soon be gone. On April 1, 1952, he ordered the town clerk to not renew the kennel license. A couple of weeks later, Sidelinker came in and put money on the counter for the renewal. It was refused.

Sidelinker had a lot of time and money invested in those dogs. He didn't intend to give up so easily. Every time the town manager made a move to rid the neighborhood of the dogs, Sidelinker had another move ready, to keep the dogs at his home.

For him, it was a grim business. For the town manager, it was a frustrating one. For the neighbors, it was a noisy one.

At one point, Kenneth Lyons, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, suggested that Sidelinker be disciplined on the Police Department. He further suggested that the police be served with an order to serve on the kennel, and that Sgt. Sidelinker be the person to serve that order.

For the selectmen, it wasn't funny. They had to listen to the complaints.

But Sidelinker hung on, hoping that he would find some company that would buy his handsome dogs.

With his case under appeal, Sidelinker had the town stymied. It went to court in March 1953. Sidelinker was there, representing himself. But no town or county officials showed up. Sidelinker moved to have the revocation of his license defaulted. The judge declined the motion, and continued the case. And then it just sort of evaporated.

The matter went on for years, practically the entire decade. The town manager would tell the selectmen that "next week" the dogs would be moved. The next week, though, the dogs would still be there. The town would serve Sidelinker with an injunction, and Sidelinker would have a legal dodge, or a promise that he was about to sell the dogs. He moved his dogs to another location in a remote part of North Wilmington, at the end of McDonald Road. At last, all was quiet at Silver Lake. But a year later, they were all back to his yard, about 40 dogs.

In 1957, the county gave Sidelinker two years, until April 1, 1959, to vacate the kennel. But that date found the dogs still there. A couple of weeks later, Sidelinker advertised in the Sunday Globe, offering to give the dogs away under a shared ownership agreement.

The selectmen were still inclined to let it go to court. But no further action was ever taken.

Sidelinker had grown up in North Wilmington. His grandfather, George Sidelinker, a railroad man, moved to High Street shortly after the Civil War. Talbot's father was Thomas Sidelinker, a meat dealer, and he married Alice Swain. He had a small farm where the Woburn Street School is today, and that is where Talbot grew up.

One ironic twist to the story is that the farm in the 1950s was owned by a Dr. Hall from Malden, who was using the property to raise greyhounds. And he was much more successful with his dogs than Sidelinker ever was with his.

Ice safety precautions

FRAMINGHAM - With the colder temperatures and the fact that many children are anxious to use the new skates they may recently received as holiday gifts, the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) has issued information regarding safety precautions to be taken on our frozen lakes, rivers and ponds.

"Before we experience a tragedy that is unfortunately too common this time of year, it is important that we remind everyone, particularly children, of the dangers of unsafe ice," said MEMA Director Don Boyce. "Lakes, ponds, streams and rivers throughout the Commonwealth are to freezing over, however, the temperature continue to fluctuate around freezing, making ice conditions very uncertain.

People may be a bit impatient to venture out on the ice for skating, hockey, ice fishing and other winter sports. We highly recommend the use of recreational skating areas provided by the Commonwealth and your local communities. It is very important to exercise precaution and common sense."

Always check with your local police, fire or park department to ensure that safe ice conditions exist. However, due to the uncertainty of ice conditions and the dangers presented, many departments will not endorse the safety of lakes, ponds, streams or rivers. The strength and thickness of ice should be known before any activity takes place.

• Never go onto the ice alone. A friend may be able to rescue you or go for help if you fall through the ice.

• Always keep your pets on a leash. If a pet falls through the ice do not attempt to rescue your pet, call 9-1-1 or go for help.

• New ice is usually stronger than old ice. As ice ages, the bond between the crystals decays, making it weaker, even if melting has not occurred.

• Beware of ice covered with snow. Snow can insulate ice and keep it strong, but can also insulate it to keep it from freezing. Snow can also hide cracks, weak and open ice.

• Slush is a danger sign, indicating that ice is no longer freezing from the bottom and can be weak or deteriorating.

• Ice formed over flowing water (rivers or lakes containing a large number of springs) is generally 15% weaker.

• Ice seldom freezes or thaws at a uniform rate. It can be one foot thick in one spot and be only one inch thick 10 feet away.

• Reach-Throw-Go. If a companion falls through the ice and you are unable to reach that person from shore, throw them something (rope, jumper cables, tree branch, etc.). If this does not work, go for help or call 9-1-1, before you also become a victim. Get medical assistance for the victim immediately.

• If you fall in, try not to panic. Turn toward the direction from which you came. Place your hands and arms on the unbroken surface, working forward by kicking your feet. Once out, remain lying on the ice (do not stand) and roll away from the hole. Crawl back to your tracks, keeping your weight distributed until you return to solid ice.

By following safety procedures, you can be safe and enjoy the many winter activities offered by the great outdoors.

The Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA) is the state agency responsible for coordinating federal, state, local, voluntary and private resources during emergencies and disasters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. MEMA provides leadership to: develop plans for effective response to all hazards, disasters or threats; train emergency personnel to protect the public; provide information to the citizenry; and assist individuals, families, businesses and communities to mitigate against, prepare for, and respond to and recover from emergencies, both natural and man made. For additional information about MEMA and Winter Preparedness, go to the MEMA website at www.mass.gov/mema.

Songs for a New World

WILMINGTON - Lights come up on a solitary woman. Another woman and two men soon join her. Their hopes and dreams, fears and failures conjure up images of explorers setting out to find new lands. The Americas of yesterday, today and tomorrow join hands across time and together discover "Songs For a New World." Music and lyrics by Jason Robert Brown, conceived by Daisy Prince.

Says the author of this gripping revue, "It's about one moment. It's about hitting the wall and having to make a choice, or take a stand, or turn around and go back."

Jason Robert Brown transports you from the deck of a 1492 Spanish sailing ship to a ledge fifty-seven stories above Fifth Avenue to meet a startling array of characters ranging from a young woman who has determined that basketball is her ticket out of the ghetto to a woman whose dream of marrying rich nabs her the man of her dreams and a soulless marriage. These are the stories and characters of today, the "Songs For a New World."

Performances will be held on January 15, 16, 22, and 23.

Tickets are now available for the musical! Tickets are reasonably priced at $10 for adult and $8 for senior citizens and children under the age of 12. For the first time ever, there will be a "student night," aimed at drawing high school and college students, on Friday, January 22. Tickets are priced at $5 for all public school, college or graduate students.

To order tickets, email Mr. Luciana at whsdramatics@gmail.com or call 978-694-6060 x 378. ### YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY CHECK

There's no cost-of-living adjustment on Social Security this year; indeed, there may not be one for a few years, as low inflation is expected to continue.

At the same time, healthcare costs are rising, and Medicare Part B monthly premiums were scheduled to rise from $96.40 to $104.20. But there is a rule that prohibits a reduction in Social Security benefits if the Part B premium goes up, so most seniors will not be hit with the increase. New enrollees in Medicare and higher-income people - couples with a adjusted gross income over $170,000 and singles with an AGI over $85,000, about 25 percent of the total - were supposed to pay increased premiums. Congress is expected to stop the Medicare increase altogether, but no one knows how that will affect the Medicare program itself.

The Social Security wage base is expected to remain at $106,800 for this year. Rates won't change, though.

What's Cooking?

by Paula Murphy

Guilt-free dips

I like to prepare healthy dishes throughout January as a cure for the excesses of the holidays. Back to plain yogurt with a swirl of honey and a sliced pear for breakfast, and fresh vegetables with a nice low-fat dip for lunch. Here are some of the dips that help me through the month. They're satisfying and guilt-free, as they have very little calories or fat.

Hot Artichoke Dip

4 slices whole wheat bread
2 cans (8 1/2 oz.) artichoke hearts packed in water and drained
1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
1 tbs olive oil
2 garlic cloves
1/4 tsp paprika
1/2 tsp dry oregano

1/3 tsp dry basil
1/3 tsp dry thyme
1/4 cup Parmesan cheese, grated
Preheat the oven to 350 degrees, and coat a loaf pan with non-stick spray. Process the bread in blender until finely ground. Set aside in a bowl. Puree in the blender all other ingredients except cheese. Add in Parmesan and bread crumbs, and process just until mixed. Spoon the mixture into the loaf pan, and bake for 15 minutes, until lightly browned.

White Bean and Roasted Garlic Spread

1 head garlic, unpeeled
2 cans white beans, rinsed and drained
1/3 cup lemon juice

1 tbs olive oil
2 tbs chopped fresh parsley
1/4 tsp black pepper
1/4 cup minced red onions
Preheat the oven to 400 degrees. Place the garlic in a small ovenproof dish and bake for 15 minutes or until soft. Cool, then slip off the skins and trim the hard ends. Puree half the beans, the lemon juice, oil, and the garlic in a blender until smooth. Transfer to a bowl, and stir in the parsley, pepper, half the onions, and the remaining beans. Mash the whole beans a little bit, and sprinkle the remaining onion across the top.

Eggplant Spread

1 large eggplant
1/3 cup seasoned bread

crumbs
1/3 cup non-fat sour cream
2 tbs lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
1/3 tsp hot pepper sauce or more to taste
3 tbs chopped fresh parsley
Cut a lengthwise slit in the eggplant, place on a microwave-safe plate, and microwave on high for 10 minutes or until it is very soft and collapsed. Cool until you can handle it. Spoon the flesh into a large bowl, mashing thoroughly, and stir in all other ingredients except parsley. Sprinkle with parsley and serve chilled or at room temperature.

Seeking High School and College Students for Internships

WCTV offers College and High School students 4 month hands-on internships, where they will learn some wonderful graphics programs (including Scala and Photoshop) to assist in designing pages for and updating the community bulletin board or to work on WCTV's website. We also offer internships as Production Assistants where the intern would assist in creating and producing original programming including programs of local interest (i.e. sports, concerts, local events) or public service announcements (PSAs) for local nonprofit service organizations, and participating as crew members on both staff and member-produced studio programs. Internships offer students the opportunity to learn to

TMHS SADD

TMHS Students Confront Destructive Lifestyles
Look up and Drive! Texting While Driving
Has Serious Consequences

By Amanda Fleming
TMHS Junior and SADD Member

As the new year begins, SADD wants to address a growing problem in our society. Texting is something that has blown up in the last couple of years. Everybody does it, from kids to the elderly. Using the latest inventions from the iPhone to the Droid, texting is convenient if you are in a crowded or a loud place and you don't want to talk on the phone. You can have a private conversation without anybody knowing, and you can even do things like vote for the American Idol winner simply by texting.

But what happens when texting becomes a life threatening activity? What happens when people decide to send that text or send that email while they're behind the wheel of a car? Within recent months, texting while driving has become a more widespread problem than drinking while driving. It's not just teens who do it, it's adults as well. They avert their eyes from the road to check their phone and send that message. That split second that their eyes are off the road could have life-altering consequences. People generally think that texting and driving is not a big deal and most believe "It won't happen to me," but do you want to be responsible for the death of an innocent person on the road? Do you want to severely injure yourself or someone else? Is that text message really worth it? Think about what that poor choice would do to your family, to your friends and to your loved ones.

It could happen, it has happened, and unfortunately, it will happen again. In fact, it is known that drivers who text are 23 times more likely to be in an accident. Texting and driving has become such a major issue that states are starting to ban it and hand out fines. Texting while driving is banned in Boston and can get you a $100 fine in New Hampshire. So you think it won't happen to you, but you have the ability to make sure it doesn't happen to you. Make the right decision. Don't become just another statistic. Please don't text and drive...it's just not worth it.

dates are extremely qualified. We need candidates who have solid business and management practices to offer. We need candidates who are not pre-programmed and will present fresh ideas. Most of all we need candidates with the courage to rebuild and to take on Beacon Hill and the Unions that threaten our children's education.

The School Superintendent's position is the most powerful office in Tewksbury, it shouldn't be.

Property tax abatement

Dear Editor,
As a candidate for the Wilmington Board of Selectman I will hand-deliver Property Tax Abatement forms to any property owner who would like to file an application. Property Tax Abatement forms must be filed no later than February 1, 2010. For property owners who do not receive their tax bill directly, they should contact their mortgage lender or view their property online from the Town of Wilmington, Web Page.

Wilmington
Candidate for Selectman

Tewksbury is worth fighting for

Dear Editor,
Tewksbury has great leaders. I want to help them. The Board of Selectmen is a dedicated team that is moving in the right direction. They are not the problem we are.

High taxes are threatening our community? It's not that taxes are higher than neighboring communities, because they probably aren't. The problem we face is spending more than we take in. We are spending money that we don't have. As our tax base increases spending can increase, but not before. Running out of money or losing our right to borrow money is a major concern.

Do we have a stabilization fund? I don't think so.

We have many needs and our financial resources are rapidly drying up. It is time for us to shuffle the deck and take another look. We can't wait for the bottom to fall out.

We have limited options:

1. Increase taxes
2. Industrial Expansion
3. Reduce benefits, freeze salary increases on town employees.

4. Attempt to lower interest on outstanding loans.

5. Reduce spending

Options one and three should not be on the table. The School Department spends over half of the town's annual budget. Our total budget is close to 93 million dollars. This is the distance that the earth is from the sun 93 million miles. That's a lot of money.

There is a great divide existing between the School Department's portion and the town's portion. That divide must end; we all need to climb into the same boat.

It is time for us to take the battle to Beacon Hill and Capitol Hill if necessary. Unfunded mandates by the State and Federal government along with the poorly thought-out ideas behind them are budget breakers. Blaming the taxpayers for not paying for unfunded waste is the easy way out. By teaming up with other regions and states and then demanding State and Federal governments cease unfunded mandates or fund them will hopefully end them.

There is more money in Boston and Washington than the government can spend, and they prove it everyday. Ask them for the money, not the taxpayers of Tewksbury. If the School Department brings down Tewksbury everyone loses.

Taxpayers want a new High School. I remind them that a new building never educated a single child, people do.

Our community is being destroyed by outsiders. It is time that we stood up to them.

MICELI FAMILY TRADITION CONTINUES

Attending the annual Army-Navy football classic has become a tradition for the Miceli family since 1981. Present at the 110th annual meeting of the two teams played in Philadelphia on Dec. 12th were (left to right) Jim Miceli, Jr., Jim Miceli III, and Representative Jim Miceli. Jim Jr is a 1981 graduate of Wilmington High School and a 1985 Honors graduate at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis. He served as a weapons officer aboard a nuclear sub. Jim III is a senior at Villanova University.

Two young ladies from Tewksbury and Wilmington belonging to Massachusetts 4H teamed up to help out the Tewksbury Food Pantry. ## 4-H members work to make a difference

TEWKSBURY - As part of a state-wide community service project, Theresa Bello of Tewksbury and Marci Zaccardi of Wilmington joined in with the Massachusetts 4-H Food Drive. Both girls are members of The Feathered Friends 4-H craft club. Together the girls collected 85lbs. of food, which they donated to the Tewksbury Community Pantry. They offer sincere thanks to all who gave food and helped the girls in their endeavor.

In addition to donating the food, the 4-H members and their leaders had the opportunity to tour the Pantry and learn about its basic operations. At the conclusion of the tour, they participated in sorting two large bins of donated food. Grasping the tremendous need for local food pantries has allowed both girls to live out a line of their 4-H pledge that states: "I pledge my hands to larger service." This opportunity definitely expanded the girls' hands to larger service.

Special thanks are extended to Becky Andrews; Volunteer Liaison, and Bonnie Capuano for taking the time to help others understand the important role that the food pantry plays in the town of Tewksbury. The organizational efforts of the Massachusetts 4-H Organization are recognized for coordinating this state-wide project that benefits local residents through the efforts of members of their own community.

Massachusetts 4-H is part of UMass Amherst Outreach and strives to help youth develop the skills they need to become capable, competent citizens. For more information about 4-H go to www.mass4h.org or call the regional 4-H educator, Wendy Marks, at 781-891-0650, ext. 29. ## Your Two Cents...

A big thank you and job well done to WCTV for the holiday school concerts they are airing on our local station. The filming and editing are great. Thanks also to the students and teachers for the hard work and practice preparing for these performances.

The salute to troops was also beautifully done and uplifting during these anxious times. If you haven't seen these concerts and salutes yet, catch them on the next airing. They will make you smile.

Thanks WCTV, students and teachers for sharing the best of Wilmington during the holiday season.

Wilmington

It really amazes me someone in the position of a police officer would endanger the public simply by not using a correct judgement on his part. A few days back a police officer heading down pass the federal street lights on middlesex ave heading towards north wilmington with his blues on he was possibly going to an accident or another emergency it just amazes me that he could be going roughly 50-55 mph with one hand on the wheel and drinking his coffee. He knows who he is; I know who is, and I just think he should use better judgement.

Wilmington

Hooray for those folks who are keeping the candles in their windows after the Christmas season to show their support for the troops.

Wilmington

To the cheerleader for all the wonderful town services we receive and how low our taxes are here in Wilmington. I just received my February 1, 2010 real estate tax bill and although the value of my house continues to go down my real estate tax bill increased 15.13% between November 2, 2009 and February 1, 2010. The town, state and federal governments are not working for the people. The "government" is working for itself. When are we going to wake up! Please vote for Scott Brown on January 19, 2010.

Michael G. Caples

Professional carpenter and family man

WILMINGTON - Michael G. Caples, age 57, of Wilmington, formerly of Allston, died peacefully at home on January 4, 2010, with his family at his side. Born in Charlestown on December 10, 1952, Michael was the dear son of the late James D. & Mary E. (Codair) Caples. Michael was raised in Allston, and spent his school years in Boston. He married Jean M. Peach, his high-school sweetheart in 1973. Together Jean and Michael had three children in Allston before moving to Wilmington in 1987. Michael could be seen attending all of his children's sporting events and activities.

In the last eight years Michael was blessed with 8 wonderful grandchildren whom he thoroughly enjoyed spending time with. He was the ultimate "family man" in the truest sense. His dream of someday owning his own boat came true in 2002. Michael named the boat "Papa's Dream" and enjoyed the company of many family and friends relaxing on the dock and getting an occasional fishing trip in every now and then.

Michael was a professional carpenter and during his off time he was always working on friends and families homes. He was truly a very gentle and generous man who was always there when needed; whether it be a small deck or a whole kitchen remodel, no job was ever too tough. Michael was forced to retire due to illness in 2008 and tried to enjoy each and every day remaining.

Michael will be fondly remembered and greatly missed by his family and friends.

Michael was the beloved husband of Jean (Peach) Caples, proud father of Michelle Hamilton and her partner Henry Belding of Wilmington, James Caples and his wife Liane of Tewksbury, Mark Caples and his wife Rebecca of Wilmington and the late Michael Caples Jr., loving Papa of Domenic, Amanda, Darren, David, James, Stella, Nathan, Riley and Mikey, son of the late Mary (Codair) and James D. Caples Sr., son-in-law of Stanley Peach and the late Jean Peach of Wilmington. Brother of Margaret Porcello and the late John Porcello of Allston, Maureen and George DeRosa of S. Yarmouth, Edwardine and Daniel Henderson of Las Vegas, brother-in-law of Joanne Caples of Melrose, Gary and Corine Peach of Tewksbury and the late Mary Jane and Leo Boucher, Sheila and Henry Tucker and James D. Caples Jr., Uncle of many loving and caring nieces and nephews.

Family & friends will gather at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington on Friday, January 8th at 8:00 a.m. followed by a Mass of Christian Burial in St. Francis de Sales Church, 303 Bunker Hill St., Charlestown at 10:00 a.m. Interment to follow in St. Patrick's Cemetery, Watertown.

Visiting hours Thursday, January 7th from 4-8 p.m.

Memorial donations in Michael's name may be made to VNA Hospice Care, 100 Sylvan Road, G-500, Woburn, MA 01801 or to the American Lung Association, 1301 Pennsylvania Ave. NW, Suite 800, Washington, DC 20004.

Thursday, December 24, 2009.

Born on December 2, 1924, in Everett, MA, David was the son of the late William and Mary (Leaden) Jones of Malden, MA. Dave grew up in Malden and was a graduate of Malden High School.

He enlisted in the United States Navy on May 11, 1943 during World War II. He served aboard several vessels, including the USS Prince William and the USS Langley as an Aviation Ordnanceman. Dave received many commendations for his service and was honorably discharged on May 6, 1946.

After his tour of duty in the Navy, Dave continued his education at Washington University and Suffolk Law University in Boston, earning a Bachelor's Degree in Accounting. Dave was employed as a CPA at the Slade Spice Company in Boston, MA and the Atwell Company in Cambridge, MA for many years before going to work at the U.S. Post Office in Woburn and North Reading until retirement.

Dave married Barbara Clifford of Brockton, MA on June 26, 1954, and they celebrated 45 years of marriage before her passing 10 years ago in 1999. Dave and Barbara moved to Wilmington in 1957 to raise their family. They also had a summer home on Drakes Island in Wells, Maine where they enjoyed many family gatherings and outings.

In his earlier years living in Wilmington, Dave was a "gentleman farmer", grew vegetables and flowers, had an assortment of farm animals (cows, sheep, rabbits, chickens, horses, ponies) and bred, raised, and raced Standardbred sulky horses with his late friend, Charlie Green of Wilmington. Later in life, he spent his spare time going to the annual agricultural fairs, auctions and yard sales, following Boston sports teams, working on his family genealogy, playing the "Jumble" newspaper game, doing crossword puzzles, and spending time with his family in New England and Colorado.

Dave was the devoted father of Paula Laine and husband Tapani of Berthoud, CO, Pamela Ward and husband Peter of Webster, MA, Myra Loiacano and husband Anthony of Essex, MA, Melissa Belair and husband Edward of Taunton, MA, David W. Jones, Jr. and his long time special friend Nancy Drown of Wells, ME, and Clifford Jones of Wilmington, MA.

He was preceded in death by his brothers, William Jones of Wilmington, MA, Robert Jones of Malden, MA, and Laurence Jones of Malden, MA.

Dave was a compassionate and caring person. In general, he showed his love and caring through doing things for others. He was always helping one of his children, family members, neighbors, his friends, friends of his children, mere acquaintances and even strangers. He welcomed anyone into his home for the holidays if they had no family to spend the holidays with and in general went out of his way for anyone that needed his help. He had a very good sense of humor and gatherings were filled with laughter and the occasional practical joke on someone. He will be sadly missed by everyone whose lives were touched by him. He was a wonderful person.

At Dave's request, his funeral services will be private. Memorial donations in his name can be made to either charity which were two of Dave's favorites: Mountain Outreach, Cumberland College, 6191 College Station Drive, Williamsburg, KY or American Indian Relief Council, P.O. ## Beat the winter blues

NORTH ANDOVER/ N. READING/ MIDDLETON/ ANDOVER - Studies show that diminishing light at this time of year can cause changes including decreased levels of serotonin (affecting mood) and melatonin (affecting sleep). Doctors suggest that one solution for this is to GET OUTSIDE during daylight hours, and exercise. Exercise alone can increase serotonin, giving a sense of well being. Combine these two at beautiful Harold Parker State Forest every Wednesday at 10:00 a.m. - meet at the headquarters at 305 Middleton Rd.

Wear appropriate footwear - hiking footwear is best - no sneakers. Feel free to bring snowshoes/skis on days with snow. Trail is of moderate difficulty. Bring water and sunscreen on sunny days.

Throughout the winter, we will cover all the trails in the park. Make this commitment for your health and well-being! Co-sponsored by The Friends of Harold Parker and DCR. For more information call 617-694-9190 Or visit www.mass.gov/der

The following is a list of possible reading resolutions that could enrich your life in 2010. Choose one or two from the list or make one of your own reading resolutions. Just read in 2010!

1. I will reread a book I loved as a child.
2. I will finally read that classic from high school that I've been avoiding.
3. I will find a book of poetry and read some aloud.
4. I will spend an hour in aimless browsing at a library.
5. I will ask a librarian for a book recommendation.
6. I will recommend a book I have read to a friend.
7. I will read a book to a child.
8. I will read a book written from a political point of view totally opposite my own.
9. I will read a book written by a non-American.
10. I will read outside my comfort zone.

Tales of a Fourth Grade Nothing by Judy Blume is the first in a group of books that follow Peter Hatcher and his little brother Fudge. Living with his little brother, Fudge, makes Peter Hatcher feel like a fourth grade nothing. Copies of the book may be reserved by visiting or calling the Children's Room at (978) 694-2098. Drop in for the discussion. A door prize and snack will be provided by the Friends of the Library.

Former Wilmington residents Winchester Hospital welcomes first baby of 2010

WINCHESTER - Winchester Hospital welcomed its first baby of the new year on Jan. 1. Daniel Thomas was born to Deirdre and Matthew Finn of Woburn, previously of Wilmington, at 1:49 a.m. He weighed 8 pounds, 6 ounces.

Finn, whose due date was Jan. 2, said she and her husband had been invited to spend New Year's Eve with family at the Tewksbury-Wilmington Lodge of Elks.

"I had a feeling I wouldn't be going though," she said.

Finn praised obstetrician Peter Rotolo, MD and the nurses in Winchester Hospital's Labor & Delivery department and Mother Baby Unit. She also appreciated the complementary "stork" steak dinner that was served to her and her husband on an elegant room service table draped in white linen. Now she is enjoying being at home with her newborn and 20-month-old son, Liam.

"They're so cute together. Liam wants to hug and kiss the baby, and he keeps giving him trucks," Finn said. "Everyone is healthy and happy."

Winchester Hospital delivers nearly 2,000 babies each year and offers education and support services that provide mothers and babies with the specialized care they need before, during and after pregnancy and birth. Winchester Hospital is the first community hospital in Massachusetts to earn Magnet recognition, the American Nurses Association's highest honor for nursing excellence, and has clinical affiliations with Children's Hospital Boston, Tufts Medical Center and Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. ## Tresca adds building to site plan

The floor of the building will be concrete and sloped to the center to capture runoff from trucks. Old material from the mixer's drums will, according to the applicant, be discharged within the building into specially designed 11 cubic yard dumpsters. The size of most drums on such vehicles is also 11 cubic feet. The building will accommodate the offloading of excess material from the concrete drums and washout of the drums and rinsing of trucks as needed.

The attorney for the applicant, William Landry, explained that this design addresses desire to construct "containment within containment." There was debate about whether or not the building will require a drain, but ultimately that decision lies with the plumbing inspector.

The site plan also expands now onto parcel B, though the list of abutters has not changed. The applicant plans to pave the left, rear portion of the site with concrete and already submitted a storm water management plan to address that part of the site.

The applicant also proposes using a vacuum truck with a vacuum pump that will allow extraction of water and other material from the floor of the facility. It, along with a street sweeper and a Caterpillar, will be stored within the building. A vegetative screen is planned to minimize visual impact of the structure.

The building will hold three containers. As one is filled it will be hauled away, always leaving two reserve containers.

Planning Board Chair Michael Sorrentino offered comments from various town boards and officers including the Assistant Water and Sewer Superintendent, the Superintendent of Public Works, the Engineering Department, and the Conservation Commission. Due to the change in the site plan, Planning Director Carole Hamilton requested revised open space calculations.

The group went to pains to explain that the site is designed as a "zero-discharge" site, such that no runoff or material will end up in the groundwater. The area is in a groundwater protection zone and abuts the Olin Chemical site. The company also plans to use municipal water for its operation, and will be installing a new water main at the direction of the Water and Sewer

Representatives of competing Benevento Sand and Stone Corporation of Wilmington, through their attorney Alan E. Lipkind, expressed a number of concerns to the Planning Board, chief among them was that the proposed system could not be found in use anywhere in the country.

"The applicant wants to use a methodology not used anywhere else in the U.S. for a concrete plant application," said Lipkind to the board. "Now, here in a groundwater protection district, they want to use this unproven system." Sorrentino interjected that he thought the building came as a result of public comments and added that he thought it was a pretty good response.

Lipkind's final point was that the standard of the law, as it applies to the planning board, is that the applicant must prove that the plan has adequate resources to ensure compliance.

At the end of the meeting the Planning Board asked that revised plans be submitted at least two weeks before the February 2 meeting. The board expects to make a decision during its March meeting.

Get your flu shot here!

January 11, from 12:00 p.m. to 2:00 p.m. at the Senior Center for anyone 65 and older.

Health Director Shelly Newhouse encourages residents to pre-register for the clinics and thereby minimize waiting in line. Newhouse says that she has "more than enough vaccine" for the clinics. To pre-register residents may log into to: www.healthy-wilmingtoncoalition.org/BOH

Previously the Health Department ran H1N1 clinics for pregnant women and all school age children. Newhouse does not anticipate another H1N1 vaccine clinic unless there is a public need. Likewise, all seasonal flu clinics in Wilmington are now complete.

The current status of the spread of influenza in Massachusetts shows H1N1 at a lull. According to a Massachusetts Department of Public Health report released last year school-children, age between 5 to 18 years, have been primarily affected by H1N1, with over 61% of cases age 18 or younger. The median age of cases is 13 and cases ranged from 0 to 92 years. To date, males and females have been equally impacted by H1N1. Overall, 387 cases have been hospitalized (20%), which is similar to the national hospitalization rate of 11% as of July 10, and 26 cases have died. Of the 26 deaths, 22 had underlying conditions.

As dosages have become available in recent weeks, Wilmington has worked to organize and turn the vaccine out as soon as possible.

Next year, says Newhouse, she hopes that the swine flu vaccine will be included in the seasonal flu vaccine.

Mardi Gras at the library

library's events.

"This is actually our fourth jazz concert," Stewart said. "They've all been very successful," she added. She also noted that all of the previous concerts had sold out.

Stewart said that the first floor of the library is converted into a jazz club, and that the aim of the series is to find quality performers in the Boston area and allow the residents of Wilmington an opportunity to enjoy good entertainment at an affordable price.

This is the library's first such event in 2010, with others to follow in May, August, and December. Stewart noted that past events had received "very positive feedback." She added that there will be, "a limited number of tickets, so we encourage people to get their tickets early." As the band plays zydeco and Cajun-themed music, it was deemed that the Boogaloo Swamis would be particularly enjoyable to book just prior to Mardi Gras, which will take place on February 16.

Assistant Library Director, Charlotte Wood, who is in charge of the library's booking of performers, spoke to the Crier about the process. She stated the library initially received inspiration from Malden, whose library had begun a jazz concert series about a year before. She mentioned that the library employs newspapers, the Internet, and theater flyers to discern well-reviewed musical groups to potentially book. Some performers have been booked on the basis of recommendations from other libraries.

Wood added that the library was very passionate about finding a Cajun group to perform for Mardi Gras. She added that the booking process has been aided by the enthusiasm of performers. "The groups have been very willing," she said.

Don't make it so easy

Wilmington Police are looking for owners of a handful of recovered GPS units, one of which requires a PIN to use it.

Sean Ellwood, 17, of Billerica, and Richard Hamlett, 21, of Tewksbury, were arrested on multiple charges from both Wilmington and Tewksbury police departments, including breaking and entering into a vehicle in the nighttime for a felony, and receiving stolen property.

Neighborhoods allegedly hit by the duo include Avalon Oaks West and Scaltrito Drive in Wilmington and County Road in Tewksbury, say police.

According to law enforcement the top three items that attract thieves are GPS units, cash, and laptops. Thieves will scour parking lots and driveways looking for unlocked vehicles, and then help themselves to any valuables left inside. The items stolen from cars are often resold on the street or through a third party. Electronics are particularly popular.

Tewksbury Police Department Administrative Superintendent John Voto adds that thieves also like compact discs, wallets and pocketbooks that are often left in cars. Of the 15 cars Ellwood and Hamlett allegedly broke into, every one was unlocked.

"It's very tough to catch people breaking into cars if they are already open," said Voto, who estimates that 90 percent of car breaks are unsecured vehicles.

Car thefts are crimes of opportunity and largely preventable if owners remove valuables from the vehicles and lock the doors and trunks when parked, every time.

"Everyone thinks, 'it's not going to be me,'" said Voto who sent out Reverse 911 calls and placed notices in newspapers last year after a spate of car breaks in the community.

Hamlett and Ellwood allegedly wiped the snow off cars to see what was inside before helping themselves to items, even loose change.

"Out of sight is out of mind," said Voto. He characterizes car breaks in Tewksbury as occurring steadily while in Wilmington, Miller says car breaks started to rise in the months leading up to Christmas.

Likewise, both Miller and Voto recommend that owners of GPS units remove the suction cup and wipe away the tell-tale ring left on the windshield as a further effort to deter theft.

Chasing car breaks is time consuming for police departments, already dealing with tight budgets. In the most recent case of 15 cars, 15 separate statements must be taken. Residents can help keep costs down by making sure they always secure their vehicles, never storing valuables in a vehicle, and using the trunk whenever possible.

WHS Sports Round-Up

Boys Hockey team remains undefeated

Rosa named Tourney MVP for second straight year

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

For the fourth year in a row, the Wilmington High School Boys Hockey team won the Haverhill Christmas Tournament and for the fourth straight time, the team's goalie earned the Tournament's Most Valuable Player honor.

Senior Zach Rosa played superb when called upon as the Wildcats defeated North Andover, 2-1, in the finals of last week's tournament. This is the second straight time Rosa earned the MVP award following Mike Cabral, who also earned it the two years before.

"I thought Zach shut down (Lexington and North Andover) late in both games," said head coach Steve Scanlon, whose team is now 8-0-0 on the season. "And it's always to win one of these tournaments and North Andover is a competitive, spunky team."

The game was scoreless until the second period when the Wildcats got on the scoreboard twice just four minutes apart. Jeff Harris and Liam Gately scored goals, with assists going to Jared Ravagni, Brian Hurley and Dan Cushing. With the 2-0 lead, Wilmington played a little uncharacteristic hockey in the third period.

"It was a tight, well played game but from our perspective, we were still searching for that complete game," said Scanlon. "We played a grinder first period, and then we played a real good second period. We outshot them 10-3 and scored two goals. Then in the third period, we took some penalties and they scored on the power play, and things got really hairy late in the game as we played some undisciplined hockey."

On Saturday night, the Wildcats played exceptional and defeated the defending Division 2 state champion Newburyport Clippers, 4-1, at the Graf Arena.

"That's a huge win and we got the three period effort we've been looking for," said Scanlon. "When we do that, play solid all three periods, we are a very tough team to handle."

Newburyport carried the first five minutes of play, before Wilmington turned the momentum around led by captain Dan Cushing who rifled two cannon shots to the back of the net for goals giving the 'Cats a 2-0 lead. Harris then scored later on the power play to go up 3-1, and after Newburyport got on the scoreboard, the 'Cats put the game away with an empty net goal by Ravagni. Liam Gately picked up two assists and Rosa was sensational making 20 stops.

"Zach was outstanding," said Scanlon. "He made several real big saves for us, especially in the last few minutes. He was excellent. I thought we played very good defensively as a team. We just really outplayed them in the third period with good forechecking and we were really going up and down the ice."

"We finally put it all together and it was our best three periods effort of the season so far. I know Newburyport was pretty charged up and so were we."

Scanlon added that despite being the defending state champions, Newburyport was ranked No. 2 in the Hockey Night in Boston Division 2 Poll, behind none other than Wilmington.

"So of course they are going to be fired up over that," said Scanlon. "But I thought our guys really played well for three periods. To win the game at their place is pretty big. Now we're hoping we can continue to click on all cylinders and keep this going."

Wilmington faced North Reading on Wednesday with results not known as of presstime, before having a rematch with North Andover on Saturday night at Merrimack College with the game slated to begin at 8:00 pm.

Boys Hoop

The Wilmington High School Boys Basketball team dropped both of its games this past week, losing to North Andover, 62-49, on Sunday before falling 76-69 to North Reading on Tuesday night. The Wildcats are now 3-4 on the season.

"We're trying to stay positive and get our ten wins (to qualify for the state tournament)," said head coach Joe Maiella after the loss to the Hornets. "Right now lack of size upfront is hurting us. Our big guys are inexperienced, and we face teams that have two big experienced guys and that's hurting us right now. But our three perimeter guys, (Michael) Murphy, (Vinny) Scifo and (Timmy) McCarthy are three of the best in the league, no question about that."

Wilmington had a 37-31 lead at halftime and then led 47-43 with two minutes to go in the third quarter. That's when North Reading went on a scoring spree, closing the quarter out on an 14-0 run which included four treys.

"We played a 2-3 zone because of their size, and when you do that, you allow guys to set their feet and they just started to make their shots," said Maiella.

The three guards for Wilmington combined for 48 of the team's points led by 22 from Scifo, 14 from Murphy, who is playing on an injured ankle, and 10 from McCarthy.

On Sunday, Murphy led the way with 20 points and 12 rebounds, while McCarthy sank four treys for his 12 points in the non-league loss to North Andover.

"You know I think North Andover is a much better offensive team than North Reading and they scored just 62 points against us," said Maiella. "I thought we played them very tough."

Wilmington returns home on Friday night against Triton Regional, before going back out on the road Tuesday to face Lynnfield.

Girls Hoop

Despite three players ending the game in double figures, the Wilmington High School Girls Basketball team fell to 1-4 on the season with a 56-52 league home defeat to neighbor North Reading on Tuesday night.

The difference in the game came at the free throw line. North Reading finished 14-for-24, and Wilmington finished 5-for-20.

"Yup, you got to make your foul shots," said head coach Jay Keane. "We practice them every single day and the girls have to make those shots. And we also did a terrible job rebounding. I'm not taking anything away from North Reading because they have had a good season so far and you can see why because they outplayed us. We were patient with the ball and had some good opportunities but then we would get out of control, and turnovers once again killed us."

Wilmington led the entire way until 6:07 left in the fourth quarter. The Wildcats had leads of 10-7, 26-24 and 40-36 after each quarter, and held an eight point lead after senior Ashley Gonzalez converted on a lay-up with 2:50 left in the third quarter. But North Reading fought back led by junior center Kirsten Morrison, who ended the game with 16 points, including hitting two huge free throws when the game was tied at 50 with 34 seconds left in the game.

"She's a good player," said Keane about Morrison. "She worked hard, she got a lot of rebounds and put backs and (North Reading) earned that win so good for them."

After North Reading crawled back into the game, the Hornets tied the score up three different times, before taking a two-point lead after Morrison converted on a three-point play with 2:23 to go. Maggie Brown then hit both of her free throws on a 1-on-1 opportunity making it a ballgame with 1:05 to go. But North Reading hit all six of its free throws down the stretch, and Wilmington missed two, and also missed several open looks.

"We just stopped running our plays," said Keane. "We would make one or two passes and then everything would just fall apart. So we're still looking for answers."

Maggie Brown led the way with 17 points, while Amanda Keane had 11 and Amy Fahey finished with 10 points and 15 rebounds.

Wilmington will travel to Triton Regional on Friday, before coming home on Tuesday to face Lynnfield.

Girls Track

The Wilmington High School Girls Track-And-Field team dropped to 0-5 on the season with a 50-28 loss to Newburyport held last Wednesday.

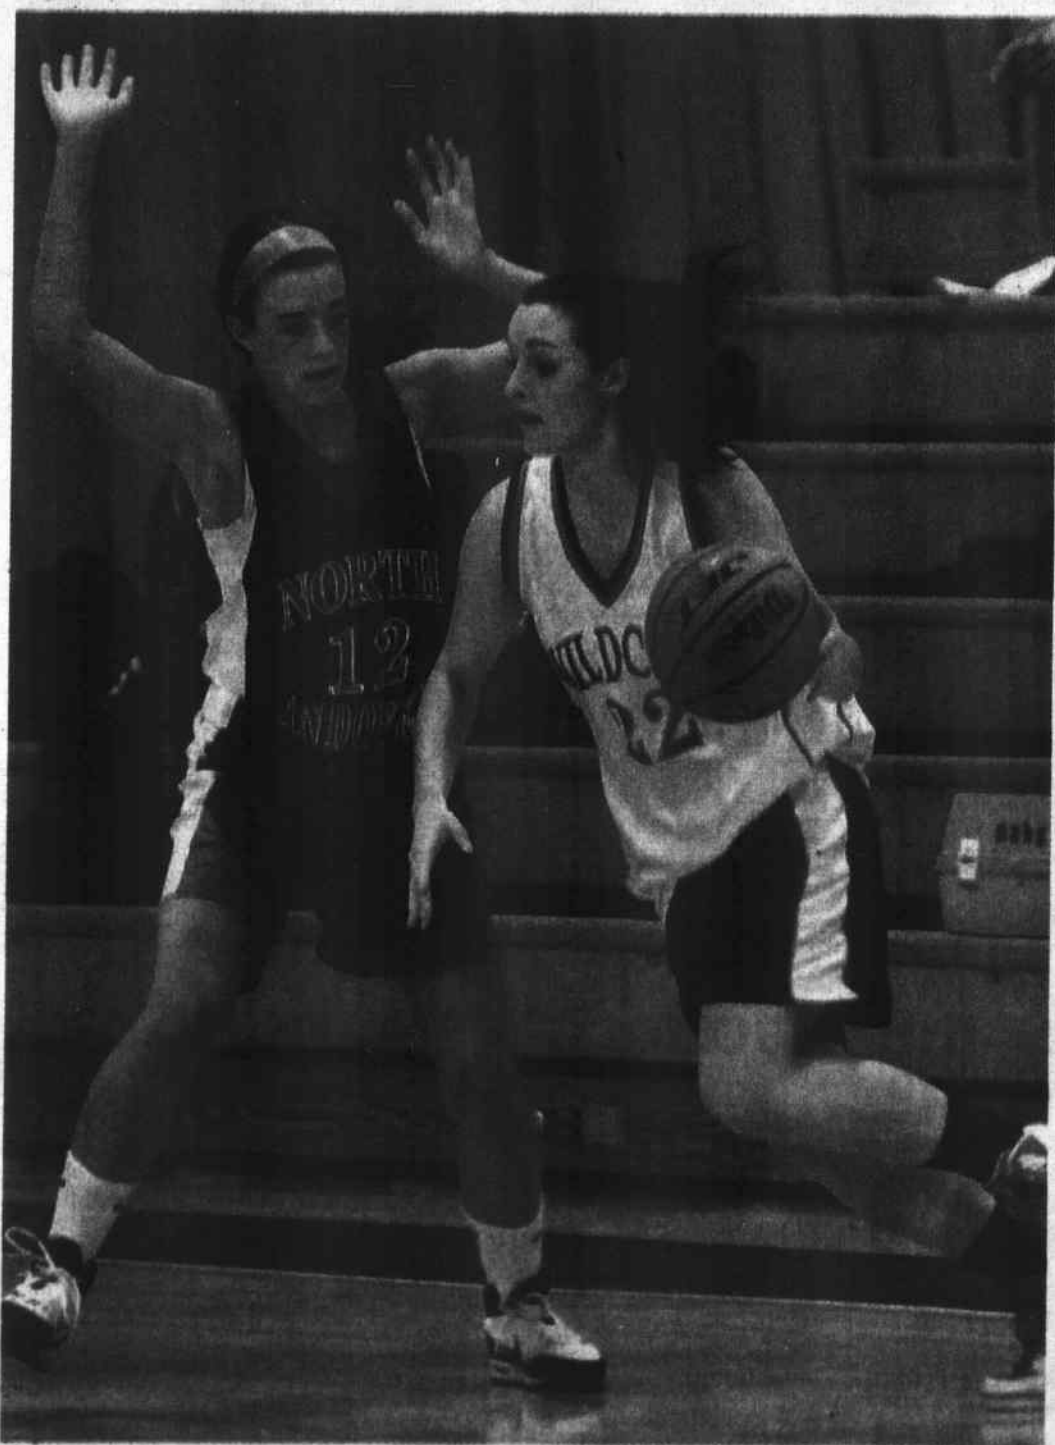

The lone individual winner for the Wildcats in the entire meet was Hannah Kelly, who took the 600 meters at a time of 1:57. Second places were earned by Jess Burke in the hurdles (10.1), Maye Randell in the dash (8.0), Lexi Steenbruggen in the 300 (49.6), Amy Fisher in the 1,000, Katelyn Hayes in the mile (6:18) and Melanie Folk in the shot put with a season best 26-1 throw.

Rounding out the scoring with third places included Julie Braid in the 600, Brittney McLaughlin in the 300, Lori Fletcher in the 1,000, Michelle Filippi in the mile and Nichole Lunt in the shot put.

Head coach Tom Bradley said that Katelynn Richardson ran quite well taking a fourth in the 1,000, while he was also pleased with Amy Fisher and Hannah Kelly's performances.

Girls Hockey

The Wildcats dropped a 3-2 decision to Chelmsford. Kaitlyn Souza and Michelle Alonardo scored the goals while Maddy Roberts picked up two assists and Caroline Robarge and Taylor Parella had one each.

Wilmington resident to play Hockey at Fenway Park on Friday

Pickett gearing up for a once in a lifetime chance

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

Casey Pickett has played in a number of big games during her hockey career. First, at Wilmington High as just an eight grader playing on the varsity team, and then at St. Mark's where she spent three years with the varsity squad. Now she has moved on to Northeastern University where she has already played in some very big Division 1 Hockey East games for the Huskies mid-way through her freshman season.

But it is unlikely she has ever played a game as big as the one she will participate in this Friday.

For on that day, the Wilmington native will take to the ice for her Huskies hockey team at Fenway Park as part of the Sun Life Frozen Fenway event. The women's game featuring Northeastern and UNH, the 109th meeting between the two schools, will face off at 4:00, followed by the men's game in a match-up of Boston College and Boston University, the last two men's national champions, at 7:00.

Needless to say, it is a once in a lifetime event, made possible by the NHL's Winter Classic, played at Fenway last week between the Bruins and the Flyers. Pickett, like the rest of her teammates is eagerly anticall three periods. We are a more determined team than we have been in a while and I think it is because we have so much talent this year."

And Pickett is very much a big part of that talent, with five goals and six assists on the season. She has also put 46 shots on net, third most on the team. Her success is hardly surprising to her coaches considering the large role they have already given her in her first year of college hockey.

"She's playing great. She was a pretty highly sought after player in high school and she has been playing on one of our top lines all year," Huskies co-head coach Lauren McAuliffe said. "We have some really good depth up front and she is part of that. She has a regular shift and she also contributes on the power play and penalty killing which is a pretty big thing for a freshman to be able to do."

And Pickett has already shown her coaches that she can be a multi-talented player who can help improve the play of those around her.

"She has a lot of good qualities," McAuliffe said. "She is real quick and she has a real good release on her shot. A couple of goals this year came wither her picking corners of the net. And she is really smart. Whoever we put her put there with, she makes them better because she creates opportunities."

As well as Pickett has been able to play in her first season at the college level, the transition was not as easy as it would appear based on her performance. There was definitely a learning curve, but it was on that Pickett was able to pick up on with her hard work and dedication to the team. She has reached the point where she feels comfortable as a Division 1 college hockey player.

"It is definitely nothing like high school hockey at all," Pickett said of the college game. "It is so much faster and the girls are so much bigger and faster. My first game I was kind of shell shocked, but after that the transition was not too bad once you realize what you have to do."

One of the things that Pickett has had to do is find a way to balance her time on the ice with her studies. For any freshman, the transition to college life and studies can be a hard one, but add in the practice schedule required of a Division 1 athlete, and it can be even more challenging. But Pickett has been able to adjust pretty well, and has excelled in both the classroom and on the ice.

"I have found a good balance," Pickett said. "In prep school (at St. Mark's) they kind of teach you to balance your time between sports and school. It is hard sometimes because we can spend up to four hours a day sometimes at the rink, but you just have to find time."

When Pickett takes the ice at Fenway on Friday, she will be excited to play in front of a large crowd, but most meaningful to her will be that her family, particularly her parents, will be in the stands as always, cheering her on. If, as Pickett said, there are only 100 people at most home games for Northeastern, she can always be sure that two of those 100 will be her parents.

"My family is very pumped up to go. They will all be there," Pickett said. "My mom and dad have not missed a game all year and my siblings have also supported me through all of it."

Along with earning a key Hockey East victory over UNH, who defeated Northeastern 2-1 earlier in the season, as well as experiencing the thrill of a lifetime by playing on the ice at Fenway, Pickett is hoping that she and her teammate accomplish one other thing in Friday's game. That is, bringing some attention to what a high quality sport she plays in women's hockey. With the game likely to be played in front of a large crowd, and being broadcast on NESN, this could be a shining moment for local women's college hockey.

"I think it will definitely do a lot for our game," Pickett said. "I am sure a lot of people who are there will be watching us because they are just there early for the guys game, but I think if they see us play they will realize that our game is just as good as the guys. It is an opportunity for us to show what we can do."

Playing with wooden backboards

Skating on Silver Lake marked a simpler time

Playing winter sports at Wilmington High School in the 1930's and 1940's was a far cry from today, when on almost every night there is a game played in what seems to be a state-of-the-art environment, with all the bells and whistles that go along with the event. What would a basketball pregame lay-up line be without blaring music and the announcing of the home team with all the fanfare reserved for that next rock star?

Wilmington High School today is tame when compared with most area high schools, and the school's athletes are still reminded that there is a game to be played with obligations to parents, coaches, fans and teachers, but not always in that particular order.

There is always time for fun and a look back, thanks to the historical efforts of the 'Wilmington Old Sports' group, the Friends of the Wilmington Library and the Wilmington Historical Commission. This time around, Anne E. Butters provides a look back into some Wilmington sports, beginning with the year 1935.

"When I graduated from Wilmington High School in 1935, Wilmington was a completely different scene than it is today," relates Butters. "There was nothing but woods in the back of the high school-now the Swain School. This was the place to go skiing in the winter after school. Powerhouse Circle was non-existent. The Catholic Church was the area of the present library, and the Common was nothing but a plain field where we played girls' baseball and field hockey. The present high school was just a home with a little apple orchard out back. Athletic activities for girls consisted of three competitive sports - field hockey, baseball and basketball."

Butters always knew what the choices were, and was happy to be involved with Wilmington athletics when the Wildcats were shooting at wooden backboards and walking over to Silver Lake for a Saturday afternoon of skating-Wilmington's real passion in the winters of what now seems like a very long time ago.

There were small groups of girls playing the three sports that were offered at Wilmington High School. Butters forever remembered her friends and their respective sports. Lifelong friendships were formed-bonds between young athletes who walked to school and couldn't wait to make their way to the gym every afternoon after class. There were few distractions back then, says Butters.

"For the four years that I attended Wilmington High School, the same group of girls participated in the three sports for all of those years. There were no other sports to divert us, and we were just about unbeatable in all three-especially in field hockey. Our games were with local communities like Woburn, Burlington and Billerica. We surely did not have the exposure of today. One of our non-school sponsored activities was skating. Rotary Park was a cranberry bog, which was flooded in the winter months for the entire town to enjoy skating.

"Some of the school functions were held at the American Legion Hall, which is now extinct, but was located opposite the present Catholic Church on the corner of Middlesex Avenue and Adams Street. We attended our senior prom at Grange Hall, which was located just behind the Nichols Funeral Home."

Butters draws up memories. Snow falling and thoughts of her senior prom with her teammates dressed to the nines. Soon they would graduate with the team photos and the trophies- never thinking that someone would even think to search for that photograph and honor that memory with a kind word or a question-just what was Wilmington like as the 1930's? turned into another decade filled with more sports alternatives and a man who was right there in the thick of what made the town's young people tick. He is Joe Gilligan.

"I played four years of baseball and three years of basketball at Wilmington High School in the mid-1940's," says Gilligan, who still resides in Wilmington. "You all remember the mid-forties, right? I didn't play varsity football for two reasons-I had a knee operation my junior year and had not recovered over the summer-and I wasn't very good anyway. I might have weighed 120-130 pounds, which was not an unusual weight for the WHS athletes at the time. That was just one of the reasons why athletes are so different today than they were 50 years ago."

There was always varsity basketball, and according to Gilligan, there was a big difference in the quality of the facilities.

But back then, the athletes didn't know that there was much more than a plain basket with rope strings nailed to some wooden backboard.

"We practiced basketball in the cellar of the old high school-later the Swain School, now occupied by WCTV. None of us were great, or even very good shooters. Boys practiced two days a week and the girls two. We were not very good. There was no three point shot-in fact no one shot from any great distance at all. Everyone's standard was a two-handed set shot with one hand on either side of the ball. Basketball back then was strictly a no-contact sport. No contact at all. As a rule, you were either right-handed or left-handed and you dribbled with one of them. Free throws were shot underhanded."

"When I was a senior, Tewksbury High School coach Charlie Hazel permitted us to practice on their court when they were finished. Ironically, we beat Tewksbury at least once. We won two other games that year by scores of 22-20 and 19-18 to the best of my recollection. Did I say that we weren't very good shooters? Of course we had no home games that year, but we played on a lot of different surfaces. In Billerica, we played on the stage of the high school auditorium.

"At North Andover, the basketball court was only slightly larger than ours and rather narrow, which meant that you sat on someone's lap to inbound the ball. We also scrimmaged at the old Lawrence Armory, which seemed like a half-mile from each basket."

When we look at old high school or even youth sports photos, we generally don't rush to chat with someone who never played with us on a particular team. When 'old' athletes gather in a room somewhere they are truly in their element-they are with each other, laughing, joking, tossing around exaggeration after exaggeration. They are young again, if only for a moment-and if they get really lucky and full of energy-an entire hour. The time frame really doesn't matter- so many Wilmington High School memories are timeless. A photograph and a newspaper clipping helps take us away from the bad news of the day. Got some doubts? Just ask Joe Gilligan.

"There's an old adage that states-the older I get, the better I was. Not true. The high school athletes of my time, with very few exceptions, couldn't match the skills of today's competitors and the environment in which they play. Today's high school athletes are unquestionably bigger, stronger and likely for the most part-better. Things sure do change."

Tambone named captain at NE College

By DAN IGO
Sports Correspondent

Team captains aren't necessarily superstars or the players who play the most minutes. They sometimes don't score the most points or make the flashiest plays. Often, they are the ones who give maximum effort 100 percent of the time and are an example both on and off the field.

Tewksbury's Mike Tambone certainly fits this bill. The junior midfielder for the New England College men's soccer team was recently named captain for the 2010 season.

Tambone would be the first to admit he isn't the most talented player on the team, but that he does other things that show he has the leadership abilities to handle the captainship duty.

"I was a little surprised (about being named captain)," he says. "I don't normally start or play 90 minutes a game. I get decent time and am more of a 20-30 minute player. I think this has more to do with my attitude on and off the field."

Tambone bounced around sports at Tewksbury High. He played football and wrestled his freshman year and also wrestled his sophomore year. He joined the soccer team his junior year after not playing the game since 7th grade. He was named a team captain his senior year.

NEC made the playoffs Tambone's first two years but was bounced in the first round both times. They missed the playoffs last year.

Tambone did score his first collegiate goal in the last game of the season against Roger Williams. He hopes to change his team's postseason performance in 2010.

"My biggest goal is to make the playoffs and do well," he said. "It's nice to just make the playoffs, but it would be good to advance."

Ashley Vitale continued her well-rounded play for the Endicott College women's basketball team as she helped lead them to the CCNY Coaches vs. Cancer Tournament title last weekend in New York City.

Vitale, a Wilmington junior forward for the Gulls, scored 10 points, grabbed seven rebounds, dished out three assists and added a steal in Endicott's 74-61 win over Johnson & Wales on Sunday.

Vitale is also a captain on the team. She is averaging 9.3 points and 6.1 rebounds a game. The Gulls (6-3) play host to Salem State on Thursday.

The "Fudgcicle 5K Series" kicked off last week in Tewksbury and three local residents participated. Wilmington's Mark Blaisdell finished in 10th place with a time of 23:42. Tewksbury's Joe Andella finished in 11th place with a time of 25:45. On the women's side, Tewksbury's Rita LaBella finished in fourth place with a time of 30:18.

The Tewksbury Youth Skating Association is asking all parents and guardians to complete evaluations for all coaches including assistants. Those evaluations can be found here: <http://www.tysaredmen.com/>.

The Tewksbury Girls Basketball League's "High School Hoops Program" will continue each Monday into the month of January at the Wynn Middle School. There will be no games during school vacation. More information can be found at the league's Web site: <http://www.tgbl.org/>. The league is also hosting its picture day this Saturday. A full schedule can also be found on the site.

Tewksbury Youth Softball is accepting applications for the 2010 season until Jan. 31st. An application can be downloaded from the league's Web site: <http://www.eteamz.com/tgs/>.

The league is holding additional walk-in registrations at the TMHS gym lobby on January 16th and 23rd from 9 am to 2 pm.

Tewksbury Youth Soccer is opening registration for the Spring 2010 season of the U4-U8 age groups until March 1st. A $25.00 late fee applies after that date. For more information, visit the league's Web site at: <http://www.tewksburyyouthsoccer.org/>.

The Tewksbury Youth Lacrosse Association is offering a beginner's girls clinic for those in grades 3-6. This free clinic will run on Monday from 4:30-6:00pm at Sports World Dome. For more information, visit the league's Web site: <http://www.eteamz.com/tyla/>.

Tickets for the Tewksbury Youth Skating Association's "Jim Plunkett Night" are currently on sale. The event will be held on February 5th at the Tewksbury Country Club and tickets are $20 if purchased in advance and $25 at the door. More information can be found here: <http://www.tysaredmen.com/>. Wilmington Little League is still accepting registrations for the Spring season online. ## Tewksbury Youth Boys Hoop action

Eagles 47, Celtics 32

For the Celtics, Anthony McNeil and Mack Boucher each scored four points. Garrett Goempel had three points while Alex Regan added one point on a foul shot. Joseph Lalonde and Dominic Catizone were the high scorers, scoring ten and nine points respectively.

John Waddell, Matt Cocca and Robbie Temmallo all worked a great defense but all their hustle wasn't enough for the win.

8th Grade Red

The Tewksbury 8th Grade Red squad dropped both games this weekend against two of the top teams in the league. On Saturday night, they traveled up to Pelham and played sluggishly most of the night, losing 52-38. Johnny Cave was the main spark for the Redmen, scoring four points and playing tenacious defense all night.

Alex Hamilton (2 points) played well underneath, grabbing a number of rebounds, while Nick Harvey (5), Dominic Rosado (5), Matt Lacascia (4) and Kevin Haley (4) added to the scoring. On Sunday, the Redmen took on the defending champions, the Haverhill Hillies, and gave them a run for their money.

Kevin Dick (4) and Michael Ryan (8) were locked in on defense, causing turnovers and missed shots for the powerful Haverhill team. Nick Cambio (17) slashed his way for 14 first half points and Tim Donovan was a bright spot off the bench adding five.

The Redmen came out strong in the second half to tie the score, and kept battling the Hillies tooth-and-nail, until Haverhill pulled away in the final six minutes of the game to take the win.

Joshua Fraser gets his name here as the man responsible for making crisp, sharp passes to DeAngelis for his baskets.

The lone basket for Penn St. was scored by Cameron Martin. Penn St. is a very energetic team who gives 200% each and every week.

The dynamic Providence Friars offense proved to be too much for the Pittsburgh Panthers to handle in this game. The Friars attack was led by Alex Fisher and Jack Sweeney with 4 points each, and Justin Eckstrom, who finished the day with 3 points. Joshua Bartnicki was impressive under the boards for his team, and Kevin O'Donnell moved the ball up the floor nicely for Providence.

The Mountaineers displayed tremendous ball movement on offense and had a total of 6 players score. Nicholas Haddad led the Mountaineer charge with 6 points and outstanding defense, while Michael Soel and Christopher Grecco contributed 4 points each. Brian Dussault Jr. and Timothy Kennedy chipped in 2 points each.

Aucoin and Brendan Daly chipped in a basket each, while Matthew Cook played intense D for the Huskies.

St John's 14, Syracuse 4

The Syracuse Orangemen played hard all game long, but ultimately had no answer for a tough St John's squad. St John's received 4 points each from Andrew Dalio, Joshua Buske, and Aditya Gautham. Robert Beatty showed his terrific rebounding skills, and Frank Lake played tough defense to help his team get the win. Nick Fanikos also played well for St John's.

Syracuse fought hard throughout the game. Joseph Rebeiro and Shane Adams led the Orangemen with a basket a piece. Joe McInerney hustled all game long, and played solid defense, while Zachary Ahlin had a tremendous effort on both sides of the floor.

Marquette 18, Louisville 10

This game bounced back and forth as the two teams exchanged baskets, but the Marquette Golden Eagles eventually found an edge and pulled ahead. The victors were led by Benjamin Maynard's hot hand, as he finished the game with 6 points, and Michael Daley's impressive offensive game, as he also had 6 points. Michael Ducharme played tough defense all game, and threw in 2 baskets of his own.

David Bailey threw in 2 points to round out the scoring for the Golden Eagles. Matthew Abbott displayed great effort on both ends of the floor, and Scott Falzano did everything he could to help his team win.

The Louisville Cardinals were led by Billy McEvoy who made tremendous moves to the basket all game long and finished with 4 points. Anthony Dell Anno was aggressive and played hard, and chipped in 2 points for the Cardinals. Alec Masiello and Colin Stanford contributed a basket, while James Sheehan moved the ball up the floor nicely for Louisville.

Notre Dame 22, Villanova 12

The Notre Dame Fighting Irish simply had too many weapons for the Villanova defense to shut down in this hard fought game. The Irish were led by Andrew Almeida and Kyle Felisberto on the offensive end, who each tossed in 8 points. Ryan Maher also played well, and contributed 6 points in his team's win.

Jason Dunn showed good hustle throughout the game and Zachary Marcinkowski pressured the Villanova offense on defense all game long. Brett Chisholm also played extremely aggressive for the Irish.

The Villanova Wildcats were led by Andrew Pearson with 4 points and countless blocks on the defensive end. The Wildcat scoring was rounded out by Carl Beatrice, Sean Lynch, Alec Bonaccorsi, and Camden Connor who had a basket each. Joseph Cuscuna played aggressive on both ends of the floor for Villanova.

DePaul 19, Georgetown 8

The dynamic DePaul offense could not be stopped by even the toughest Georgetown Hoyas defense. Jonathon Simmons led the way for DePaul, as he had an overall outstanding game and finished with 5 points. Ryan Aldrich and Scott Edwards Jr. finished the day with 4 points each. Niko Barone flew up and down the court, and chipped in with 2 points of his own. Travis Hamilton also threw in a basket of his own.

Cincinnati 22, Rutgers 11

The Cincinnati Bearcats were on fire from the first whistle of the game, and did not seem to miss all game long.

The Rutgers defense did all they could, but the Bearcats hot hands could not be extinguished. Cincinnati was led by high scorer Samuel Jennings with 8 points, and the terrific shooting of Chancellor Harper, who finished the day with 6 points. Sean Braz also played well, and finished with 6 points. Justin Trevisani also chipped in a basket of his own, and Cristian Beltran did everything he could to help out his team.

Rutgers was led by the dominating performance of Edmond DeAngelis, who threw in 9 points, while still passing the ball around nicely to his teammates. John Cox threw in a basket for the Scarlet Knights to round out the scoring, and Jason Vallee and Conor Kilbride worked hard to keep their team in the game.

Conference USA - Boys Grades 6&7

Tulane 32, Marshall 14

Doing the damage for Tulane came from two players. Mark DeRosa had a game high of 11 points while Robert Fullerton threw in 10 points. Billy Falter has had the shot of the year when he scored 2 of his 4 points by making a shot from behind his head - simply unreal. Jake Kelly is the definition of hustler, based on how he played on Saturday.

Leading the way for the Thundering Herd was Andrew Vellucci with 9 points. Also scoring were Zach Rourke and Sean Lowney with 3 and 2 points each. Antonio Larfarello was a monster on the boards.

UAB 35, Memphis 13

Wilmington Mite 3's remain busy on the ice

A Christmas vacation from school means a chance to play a little more hockey for the Wilmington Youth Hockey Association Mite 3 team. Three games in six days brought mixed results on the scoreboard, but good fun for all the participants.

First up after Christmas was a Sunday afternoon match against Cape Ann at the Tewksbury rink. After a scoreless first period, Cape Ann grabbed a lead midway through the second. Wilmington answered with a goal by Nolan Vigeant late in the period, and the teams headed to the third period tied.

Cape Ann again scored near the middle of the period, and tacked on insurance a few minutes later. Now down 3-1, the Wilmington team responded in just 20 seconds, when Brendan Ardito scored, assisted by Max Churchill and Anthony Bowker.

The Wildcats pressed forward, Riley Fitzgerald showing his speed as always, but the boys could not score again as Cape Ann's goalie stood tall.

On Tuesday morning, the Wilmington boys faced the Andover girls at Malden. Andover scored late in the first, but with Anthony Cuozzo again playing goal, the defense of Garret Alberti, James LeFave, Joseph Hartzell, and Aidan Elkins shut the door after that.

Wilmington's Chris Bernazani scored in the second, and again in the third, each with an assist from Brendan Ardito, and the Wildcats skated off with the 2-1 win.

Finally, on Saturday morning at Woburn, the Wildcats played against a Tanners team they had faced in Thanksgiving tournament play. With Garret Alberti moving to goalie, Matt Ardito joined the defense, and Anthony Couzzo lined up at center with forwards Harry Serounian and Alex Fitzler.

In a tight back and forth game, Chris Bernazani scored the lone Wilmington goal, again with an assist from Brendan Ardito. Woburn scored single goals in the first and third periods, and survived a late rush when Wilmington pulled their goalie in the final minute.

The team continues Valley League play through January, with new division match-ups sure to bring more close scores and exciting game action.

Girls Grades 5&6
North Carolina 19, Virginia 16

North Carolina rode the shooting ability of Sarah Klucznik (6 points) to a win over Virginia Saturday. Melissa McNamara and Teresa Gracia shot well and each scored 4 points. In addition to playing great defense, Kayla Koster (2 points) and Jessica Backman (3 points) both scored a basket.

Marisa Butler had a good shooting day and led Virginia's offense with 8 points. Samantha DeMonico stole the ball multiple times and scored 4 points on some nice fast break baskets. Samantha Colombo and Shannon Mota each contributed 2 points to the effort. Katie Colombo, Katie Blair and MacKenzie Casey all had great defensive games for their team.

Florida St. 14, Clemson 6
Tri Bruce scored 8 points, all in the second half, as Florida St. pulled away from Clemson. Also adding to the offensive total were Olivia Hill with 4 points and Christina Spinos with 2 points. Samantha Martignetti, Kate Fitzpatrick and Liza Lake's unselfish passing made it easy for teammates to get open shots all game. Hannah Burns and Arianna Schuurman's intensity on defense made it difficult for Clemson to run its offense.

Clemson kept things close in the first half with tenacious defense. Katelyn Fisher and Arianna Scoppettuolo were stopping the Florida St. fast break and pressuring the half court offense keeping the game within reach. Amanda Boyle (2 points), Liz Freitas (2 points) and Kristin Brown (2 points) accounted for Clemson's scoring. Erin Riel and Morgan Walsh distributed the ball well on offense and made some nice defensive stops.

Georgia Tech 21, Miami 16
Hailey Liston matched her uniform number by leading her team in scoring with 7 points. Complimenting Liston's scoring was a strong all around performance by Emily Rakers with 4 points. Siobhan Reidy (2 points) shot free throw after a nice drive to the basket. Erica Pudvelis (2 points), Nicole Mallinson (2 points), Jade Sanzone (2 points) and J a m i e Shanning (2 points) rounded out the scoring for Georgia Tech. Sophie Consorti's defense kept the Miami offense out of scoring range.

Courtney Murphy led her team with 10 points, many scored on nice drives to the basket. Tayla O'Neal had 6 points in a solid effort. An exceptional defensive effort by M o n t a n a Howlett, Emily O'Keefe and Emily Loud limited Georgia Tech's scoring in the first half. Julia G a k e , Samantha Pizzi and Kyra Walsh kept defensive pressure on the opposing team the entire game.

Virginia Tech 22, Wake Forest 15
Virginia Tech's well-balanced scoring attack resulted in 6 players putting points on the scoreboard and a victory over Wake Forest. Cayman Hardy (6 points) and Sonia Purohit (6 points) shared top scoring honors and played exceptionally well. Point guard Erin Filetti had 4 points, Sydney Brennan had 2 points, Rachel Gullotto had 2 points and Brianna O'Donoghue had 2 points. Ruju Trivedi's interior passing helped Virginia Tech get easy shots underneath the basket.

Wake Forest's top scorer was Katelyn Musto with 6 points followed closely by Christina Natola with 4 points. Playing a strong offensive game and scoring 2 points each were Julia Gaffey and Allison Wadland. Samantha Rideout and Chloe LeBlanc played a great all around game, and Sofia Puccio and Nicole Barry's presence in the middle of the defense made Virginia Tech think twice before taking the ball inside.

Maryland 17, Duke 16
Maryland prevailed over Duke in the final minute of the contest as Isabella Cigna scored 6 points and Samantha MacInnis scored 6 points to lead Maryland. Melody Almeida (4 points) and Victoria Tompkins (2 points) worked hard in the low post to score. Katelyn Stevens and Holly Doyle's defensive play was pivotal down the stretch and may have been a deciding factor in this close game. Kayla Martin and Meghan Rodenhiser's impact on the defensive end of the floor was immeasurable.

Erin Miassarian (8 points) scored inside and Melissa Moreira (8 points) scored from the outside as the duo kept Duke in the game until the very end. Helena Walker was fouled driving to the basket and had free throw opportunities. Elisabeth Olson, Lily Keating, Marci Zaccardi, and Mary Lesperance gave their maximum effort on defense until the final buzzer.

WNBA - Girls Grades 7-10
Sparks 21, Storm 18
The Sparks had a little extra fire this week as Jessica Hogan led the attack with 6 points. Rael Gallucci and Taylor Howlett were next in line with 4 points each. Julie Welch chipped in with 3 points while Jana Cosman-Cyrus and Janelle Heenan rounded out the scoring with a basket apiece.

The duo of Shreya Pai and Amanda Richards matched Hogan's total as they led the Storm's 18 point offense. Sara Ennis and Nicole Potcner combined for the final baskets scoring 4 and 2 points respectively. Brianna Tavares and Michaela Rodenhiser were defensive standouts for their teams.

Comets 41, Mystics 39
In a high-scoring overtime thriller, the Comets flew past the Mystics by a 2-point deficit. Rachael Mara led all scorers with an astounding 20 points. The rest of her team chipped in nicely as Hannah Brown had 6, Samantha MacInnis and Brianna Perrino, both had 4 and Jillian Williams added another 3. Michaela Ouellette and Erin Duffy both had a basket.

The Mystics put up a great fight as their duo of Brittany Abbott and Hannah Reynolds put out great performances with 14 and 13 points. Hannah Paoletti had a good day with 4 points of her own, while Nicole McInry, Nikkia Marcin, Emma Gaudreau, and Kristen Luise all had a deuce.

Liberty 22, Mercury 10
In the final game of WNBA action this week, the Liberty held their ground to come away with a decisive victory. Each Liberty member made a positive contribution to the win. Cassandra Grasso led all scorers with 6 points and Michelle Murray added another 5. Lauren Mulligan had 4 points of her own and Marina Otis chipped in with 3. Sarah Cokash and Caroline Newhouse had a basket apiece. Danielle Gianatassio made many key passes to ensure the victory.

The Mercury struggled, but they never gave up. Olivia Walsh led her team with 4 points. Ashley LaCambria, Caroline Albanese and Kate Curley all contributed 2 points of their own.

Both Redmen Hoop teams fall on Tuesday

TMHS Boys Hoop

Eighteen turnovers in the first half coupled with 11 more in the second just about did in the Tewksbury boys' varsity basketball squad, as no amount of defensive pressure or timely rebounds could help in this latest setback, a 73-60 loss at Haverhill Tuesday night. The defeat dropped Jim Sullivan's team to 2-5 on the season with tough home contests coming up against Chelmsford (Jan. 8) and Lowell (Jan. 12).

The Redmen trailed 41-31 at the half and failed to make up much ground with a 57-48 deficit after three quarters.

"We were not able to get any closer than about nine points. We started the second half with a defensive stop followed by a turnover. Empty offensive trips are absolutely killing us. We went three straight possessions in the second half with nothing to show for it. Empty trip after empty trip after defensive stops," said Sullivan.

Junior Ryan Vibber (9 points, 7 rebounds, 2 assists, 2 steals) had the tough task of guarding Noah Vonleh, Haverhill's 6'5" freshman guard, and Vibber responded nicely, holding the Hillie to 16 points. Vonleh had been averaging 19 points per game in Haverhill losses to Andover, Dracut and undefeated Masconomet. The win over Tewksbury was the first Haverhill victory of the season, and according to the Redmen coach it was a winnable game that saw his team take a step backward as it heads into the meat of the Merrimack Valley Conference schedule.

"Unfortunately, we went backwards tonight. We had a good handle on their full-court pressure and we were getting good shots. We are still being too careless with the ball. We make bailout passes which results in all those empty trips. We work hard on defense then the other team gets points off our bad offense. We are not getting the ball to the right guys in the position for them to make a shot. This was a game that we could have won," said Sullivan.

Haverhill consistently came up with timely baskets to cut short Tewksbury runs in the second half. The Redmen did play better defensively at moments in this game, taking three offensive charges, but having a tough time with a big guard (Vonleh) handling the basketball. Tewksbury sank 21 of 31 free throws and even out-rebounded the Hillies by a slight margin, but it wasn't nearly enough. The winners got to the offensive boards too many times for big baskets in the second half.

Senior co-captain Trace Salvato was again a mainstay for Tewksbury with 16 points and five rebounds. Junior Joe Hülme chipped in with eight points and five boards, while junior co-captain Sean Gorman finished with six points and seven rebounds. James McDermott, Michael Petrowski and Michael Doucette all finished with five points apiece for the Redmen.

Tewksbury will need all hands on deck this coming week in order to stay close against teams like Chelmsford and Lowell. More empty trips will mean more defeats, and Sullivan can't emphasize this enough. "Our job is to step up and make shots. Everyone has to gear up," said Sullivan.

Tewksbury basketball will be hosting all varsity hoop alumni at Friday night's home game with Chelmsford that starts at 7:30 pm. There will be a halftime introduction of some of the best basketball players in the school's history and a brief presentation. All TMHS' basketball alumni are encouraged to attend and meet the members of this year's TMHS varsity.

TMHS Girls Hoop

Heading into Tuesday night's game against MVC foe Methuen on Tuesday night, the Tewksbury High girls basketball team and coach Mark Bradley knew they would have to do their best to contain Rangers star Rashidat Agboola. The Boston University bound senior recently scored her 1,000th career point and was also recently named the MVC Division 2 volleyball Player of the Year. Clearly she would be a lot to handle.

And the Redmen actually did do a pretty good job of containing her, limiting her to 14 points. And they also did a pretty good job of limiting the entire Rangers team for almost three quarters, but it was not enough, as an 11-0 run by the visitors to end the third quarter gave them the spark they needed, and the Redmen fell by a score of 56-45.

In a game marked by some uneven play by both sides and some poor free throw shooting by both sides, the Redmen trailed by just one point, 25-24 at halftime and held a 33-29 with about three minutes to go in the third quarter. But that was when the floodgates opened and Methuen took over the game, led primarily by Agboola's teammate, forward Courtney Murach, who finish with 23 points on the night.

"The girls fought hard tonight," Bradley said. "They are working very hard defensively, but we are not finishing shots we are supposed to finish. We shot about 50% from the free throw line tonight and you are not going to win games like that."

Methuen jumped out to a 7-1 lead in the early going, and looked poised to take control of the game, but the Redmen were not about to back down, as they rattled off eight straight points to take a 9-7 lead on a three point play by forward Lizzie Marchand off of a great feed underneath from junior guard Michelle Gavin with 3:08 left in the first quarter.

The teams traded baskets for much of the remainder of the quarter with Murach doing most of the damage for the Rangers while the Redmen were led by four first quarter points from, Karie Judge and the Redmen trailed just 13-12 at the end of one.

The Rangers still could not shake the Redmen in the second quarter as the feisty Tewksbury squad fought back every time the Rangers tried to put some space between them. Methuen went up 17-12 early in the quarter, but a bucket by senior captain Danielle DePierro (19 points) and another by Jess Sullivan, followed by a DePierro free throw tied the game with 5:32 left in the half.

As well as the Redmen were playing, they also could not pull away from Methuen as the Rangers consistently found their way to the free throw line, shooting 20 charity shots in the first half. Fortunately for the Redmen they were only able to connect on seven of them.

"We got in foul trouble and that hurt us," Bradley said. "They were calling the game really tight. In a big game like this you would like to see them let the kids play and not call the nitpick stuff. But a loss is a loss, and we had our chances at the free throw line as well."

Indeed they did, as the Redmen managed to go only 6 - of - 13 from the line in the first half. Still, they were playing well otherwise, and when Gavin made a great play to score over a much larger defender with 1:03 left in the half they held a 24-23 lead. Agboola scored with seven second left in the half to give Methuen the 25-24 lead, but it was clearly anyone's game headed to the second half.

In the third quarter the Redmen got some outstanding play from their own superstar, as DePierro scored the first four points of the half to help them to a 29-25 lead. DePierro's 19 points on the night moved her to within 34 points of her own 1,000 point milestone. Once she surpasses that mark, it's believed she will become just the second female in school history to reach that milestone.

A nice spin move to the basket by guard Allie Frazier (7 points) and another DePierro hoop gave the Redmen a 33-29 lead with 2:50 left in the third quarter. But unfortunately that was as good as it would get for the Redmen as the 11-0 run by Methuen to give them a 40-33 lead to end the third quarter could not be overcome.

Tewksbury fought hard with DePierro and Brittany Pandolph in particular doing their best to keep their team in the game, and they trailed by only four, at 44-40 with 5:00 to go in the game, but Methuen took over down the stretch led by Agboola and Murach, eventually extending their lead to 54-41 with 2:00 left in the game before closing it out with the 11 point margin of victory.

"Overall I thought we did a good job," Bradley said. "I thought Allison Frazier had a good night, as of course did Danielle. And I thought Michelle Gavin played well. All of the girls worked hard defensively, but we just came up a little short."

Last Thursday night the Redmen suffered another tough MVC home loss, this time dropping a 52-46 decision to Central Catholic. The Redmen were within one possession of tying the game late in the fourth quarter, but were unable to convert and went down to defeat despite an amazing 32 points from DePierro.

"It was the same thing as tonight," Bradley said after Tuesday's loss. "We were not finishing. Danielle had a great game, but it was not enough. The girls know it. They know we can play better and they are not happy about it. We just need to do a better job of finishing."

Mass. schools could benefit

Race to the Top

By PAUL FEELY

Many school districts throughout the state, and the Middlesex East region, are taking long, hard looks at joining in a race for funds, dollars that many districts so desperately need to keep services at or near level-funded in the coming fiscal year.

Earlier this year, President Obama launched an opportunity for states to move forward on innovative and new ideas in education that would be otherwise cost prohibitive. The federal Race to the Top (RTTT) grant is a competitive, $4.35 billion education reform program enacted as part of the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA). This could result in an award of up to $250 million in additional federal dollars for Massachusetts.

The money is not meant only for the state - it is also meant for use in the districts to build capacity for continued change, so that when the federal dollars are gone, the work it has funded can be sustained and continue to grow.

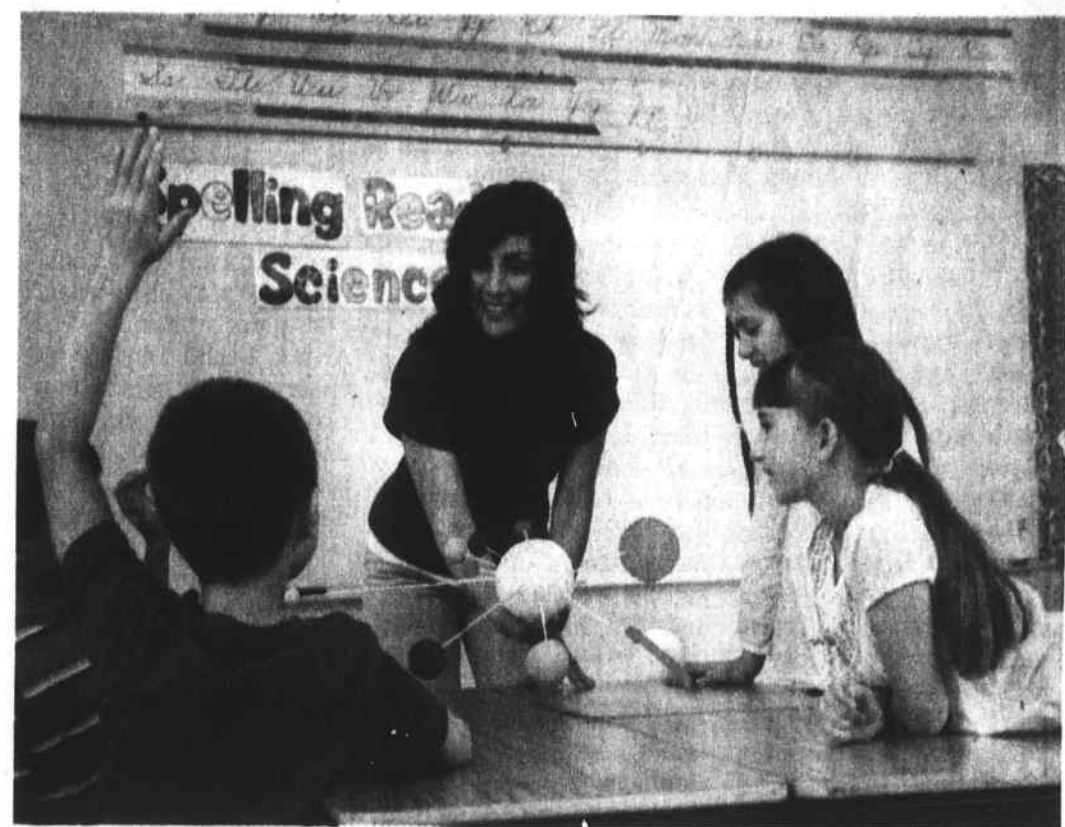

While Race to the Top presents the state as a whole, as well as individual districts with a tremendous opportunity, it also creates challenges. The U.S. Department of Education has asked states to set 'bold but achievable' goals across four "assurance" areas to demonstrate that the state and participating districts are taking a systemic approach to reform.

Massachusetts has been at work for months to develop a 'bold but achievable' proposal that will stand out among the other states, and many stakeholders have already provided input via taking part in webinars, regional meetings and other forums. The state's focus has been on developing forward-thinking initiatives to help turn around the lowest-achieving schools and districts, help place the top teachers and leaders in every school and classroom, and ensure that all students receive the education they need to succeed in the 21st century.

The Reading School Committee just began discussions on the program two weeks ago, and eventually voted to authorize Chairman Charles Robinson to sign a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU).

"The school committee's reaction to the Race to the Top funding has been very positive," said Reading's Acting Superintendent of Schools John Doherty in an email interview. "The School Committee voted to give the Chair authority to sign the MOU. In order for a district to be eligible for Race to the Top programs and funding, the MOU has to be signed by the Superintendent, School Committee Chair, and Union President. I have attended two DESE webinars with the School Committee Chair and the Reading Teachers' Association President.

"The RTA President has been very positive about the opportunity, but is awaiting for more information from the Massachusetts Teachers' Association. The language in the MOU was developed with input from the MTA and the AFT."

Doherty has also been watching how other neighboring districts are reacting to the opportunity.

"The results in districts are mixed," said Doherty. "Some districts are seriously considering it, while others are not. I think people are waiting until after the holidays and the additional information that the MTA and AFT are providing before committing."

According to a fact sheet provided by Massachusetts education officials, the state plans to use its funds to:

- Make one-time investments, including development of new tools and infrastructure
- Build state-level capacity to administer grant and sustain investments beyond the RTTT funds
- Provide additional cost-sharing funds to support districts that volunteer as pilot or start-up sites for key initiatives

• Support competitive grants for districts around key initiatives

• Offer non-Title I districts funds to offset costs or to provide incentives to join relevant statewide RTTT initiatives

• If Massachusetts is awarded funds, districts will have 90 days thereafter to develop a locally customized, final scope of work for how RTTT distribution will be used to implement the state's plans

• District costs may include both one-time investments and ongoing costs required to sustain the work with a dis-

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"Up In The Air" great entertainment

"UP IN THE AIR" is a sophisticated and smart comedy tailor-made for adults, and easily one of the most enjoyable films of the year. George Clooney's job is to fire people. He finds this easier than developing friendships, until he meets a special woman. This movie is Oscar material.

"UP IN THE AIR"
GRADE: ****

Ever since this film debuted in festivals in September, the dramatic comedy "Up in the Air" was declared by most as a top Oscar contender.

Now, finally in wide release, audiences everywhere can enjoy director Jason Reitman's latest charmer, a sophisticated and smart comedy tailor-made for adults, easily one of the most enjoyable films of the year.

Based on a script Reitman co-wrote with Sheldon Turner, which itself is based on a novel by Walter Kirn, the film focuses in on George Clooney, playing a frequent-flying corporate ax man named Ryan Bingham. A man defined by his work, he spends his life flying around the country and firing people for bosses who can't do it themselves. It's not a job for everyone, but it's a perfect fit for Bingham, and lucrative, too, especially during the current recession.

"It's one of the worst times on record for America," says Bingham's boss, played by Jason Bateman. "This is our moment."

Besides, Bingham - whose life goal is to log 10 million frequent-flyer miles - has convinced himself that life on the road is the best life. He tells himself it's because of the efficiency and order it offers: the hard-and-fast airport rules, the nice-and-neat hotel rooms, the luxury of keeping the rest of the world, and the messy problems relationships can bring, 30,000 feet below you.

In reality, though, it's because human relationships are tougher to handle than the occasional cancelled flight or extended layover. Rather than create connections with other people, he prefers the pleasures airline workers reserve for their best customers.

Clooney oozes a boyish charm and rascalish streak, until, out of the blue, comes a double-whammy. First he develops feelings for a free-spirited fellow traveler named Alex (newcomer Vera Farmiga). That's followed by a wake-up call at his company, with the arrival of a young upstart named Natalie Keener (Anna Kendrick), who is as smart as she is sarcastic.

While Clooney was busy flying around with Alex, it seems Natalie convinced their boss that the company could save money by grounding all of its "terminators" and having them fire people via teleconference instead. Before the firm buys into the plan, however, Natalie is ordered out onto the road to see exactly what the job requires.

When the Golden Globe nominations were announced, "Up in the Air" led all movies, earning six. Look for more come Oscar time.

"SHERLOCK HOLMES"
GRADE: ***

A Sherlock Holmes whose fists are just as quick and nimble as his intellect? The game's afoot, as Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's legendary sleuth gets a cinematic shot in the arm in this entertaining and action-packed mystery. British director Guy Ritchie revitalizes the Holmes character, and his sidekick Dr. Watson, for a new generation of filmgoers.

Holmes (Robert Downey Jr.) is the top private investigator in turn-of-the-century England. The eccentric but brilliant Holmes works alongside his colleague Dr. John Watson (Jude Law) to solve unsolvable crimes, such as his latest mystery: Convicted killer Lord Blackwood (Mark Strong) appears to have cheated death, and his powers have forced the public into a panic.

Blackwood isn't Holmes' only concern. Holmes' old flame Irene Adler (Rachel Watson) resurfaces with a request to find a missing man. As Holmes fights off his feelings for Adler, he begins to realize the two cases are linked. To top things off, Watson's upcoming marriage may spell the end of his partnership with Holmes.

Plus, a mysterious professor keeps popping in and out of the shadows.

Downey Jr. is exceptional as Holmes and Law is great as Dr. Watson. The two make a perfect pair, rivaling some of the best big-screen buddies of the past two decades.

This Holmes is an excellent fighter, skills hinted in Doyle's books. Holmes' intellect and knowledge of human anatomy allow him to anticipate punches and quickly neutralize attackers. The on-screen fights keep the film moving at a quick pace.

"Sherlock Holmes" is a caper worth spending some time with this holiday season.

"AVATAR"
GRADE: ***

Director James Cameron's latest, a sci-fi adventure set on another planet, features special effects and 3D motion technology so revolutionary that the film itself seems out of this world.

Avatar is the story of an ex-Marine who finds himself thrust into hostilities on an alien planet filled with exotic life forms. As an Avatar, a human mind in an alien body, he finds himself torn between two worlds, in a desperate fight for his own survival and that of the indigenous people.

More than ten years in the making, Avatar marks Cameron's first return to feature directing since helming 1997's Titanic, the highest grossing film of all time and winner of eleven Oscars, including Best Picture.

WETA Digital, renowned for its work in The Lord of the Rings Trilogy and King Kong, incorporates new CGI technologies to transform the environments and characters into photorealistic 3D imagery that transports the audience into the alien world rich with imaginative vistas, creatures and characters.

"Avatar" is alive with 3-D eye candy for 162 minutes (it didn't feel that long), as Cameron has invented a new 3-D camera rig and refined the art of performance-capture technology.

What this means for viewers seeing the film in 3-D and in IMAX is that it virtually feels as though you are on the distant moon called Pandora, and that his cast members coated in electrodes can believably inhabit the bodies of 10-foot-tall, bright-blue aliens with feline features.

Eyes will widen from the start at meeting Jake Sully, a Marine among dozens floating out of a six-year cryogenic state upon arriving at Pandora. This moon is worth the trip because it contains an energy source that the earthlings cover.

Jake's twin brother, a scientist, was meant for a Pandora research mission. But his death allows Jake (who previously lost the use of his legs), as a DNA virtual match, to inhabit his brother's fully gestated avatar.

These remote-controlled bodies (imagine Jake in a sleep chamber; his avatar on Pandora having adventures) are a visual match for the Na'vi (naw-vee), the moon's indigenous tribe, and it allows Jake to breathe their moon's air safely.

The effects are stunning, so much so that it's easy to forgive the sections of the plot that seem familiar, and portions of dialogue that come across as being clunky.

This is a world you'll want to visit again.

"INVICTUS"
GRADE: ***

Director Clint Eastwood produces another very good, inspirational film with his latest, 'Invictus'.

After directing a slew of provocative movies, Eastwood, 79, produces an uplifting sports movie set against the backdrop of South African president Nelson Mandela's mid-1990s attempt to unify a split post-

Get In Shape for Women is absolutely my favorite gym experience ever! At 34 I'm seriously stronger than I've ever been in my life! I have never been in better shape and I've only been going for two months. I've lost weight, gained muscle and feel like an athlete. I can't imagine what I can accomplish by the time I've been here a year! One reason it's been so effective is I GO. There are great trainers waiting to help me reach my goals. I can't make excuses or put it off. Secondly, they push me harder than I would ever push myself. They constantly challenge me to do more or go faster until I'm doing things I never imagined I could. Finally it's fun! The trainers are awesome, the other women are awesome and they make me happy to be there. I've made great workout friends who are always supportive and encouraging. I love it and so will you.

apartheid nation through the game of rugby.

In Mandela, played with grace and humility by Morgan Freeman, Eastwood has the type of film character he admires, who has endured unfathomable obstacles, that he can portray in a positive light.

The movie opens with Mandela's 1990 release after having spent 27 years of his life in prison for opposing his nation's oppressive apartheid rule. Eastwood shows the tense state the country is in as a car with Mandela in it drives past two different rugby games.

On one side of the road, a group of black South Africans stops its hard-scrabble game on a dusty field to wildly cheer Mandela. On the other, young, white South African team members, dressed in spotless uniforms and playing on lush green grass, stare as their coach mutters a nasty comment.

The film then whips through Mandela's election and burrows into the meat of the plot: Mandela wins the presidency and decides he can bring black and white South Africa together by encouraging the country's sputtering Springboks team to win the World Cup. Mandela also realizes that victory would improve South Africa's world image.

Mandela summons team captain Francois Pienaar (Matt Damon) for tea, and in a little while the rugby player realizes Mandela's seemingly simplistic vision has the power to heal a nation.

The film is a real crowd pleaser, with an Oscar-worthy performance from Freeman and directed by one of the top film pros in the business today.

"BROTHERS"
GRADE: ***

When a decorated Marine goes missing overseas, his black-sheep younger brother cares for his wife and children at home - with consequences that will shake the foundation of the entire family.

The plot centers around how will the brothers come to terms with issues of love, loyalty, and manhood - and with the woman caught between them.

The film belongs to Maguire, and he and director Sheridan orchestrate things perfectly here, walking the fine line of tension through the film that explodes at the end.

"Brothers" is a challenging, disturbing film to watch.

About the Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

FOOD FIRST, HONORS MOST IMPORTANT AND THEN SOME STUFFING.

Please check your local "Daily Times Chronicle" for daily updates.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT IN WAKEFIELD

"Town Moderator William Carroll, Town Administrator Stephen Maio, Finance Committee Chairman Dan Sherman, all Committee and Department heads and over 150 voting residents successfully completed the 13 Warrant Articles at the Wakefield Town Meeting," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Article 1, presented by Maio, called for the acceptance of the 2009 Budget Report. He noted 'I am happy to report that all Town Departments managed to stay within or actually expend less than their respective appropriations.' The Article was approved.

"Article 2 was favorably voted on and authorized the Board of Assessors to use free cash in computing the tax rate.

"Article 3 was approved allowing Wakefield to impose a local tax on meals at a rate of .75% and it is estimated it will bring in approximately $175,000 to the Town. Maio introduced the Article and explained that the State has allowed these types of 'local options' and that the funds go to the State and are then sent to the Town on a schedule. A debate about taxing took place and Marc Luca suggested that the tax not be imposed and that fact be advertised and it would attract more people to come to Wakefield and make it that 'Destination' that is desired. Jim Scott remarked 'The Town certainly could use $175,000.'

"It was pointed out that prepared meals from grocery stores were not taxed, but street vendors and caterers were included as well as fast food places and coffee shops.

"Article 4 was approved allowing a 2% tax on hotel rooms. There was very little debate on this as many other cities and towns have adopted this option."

MONUMENTAL THANKS IN WOBURN

Veterans Day took on a very special meaning yesterday as the city of Woburn dedicated three new monuments to honor the Vietnam and Iraq / Afghanistan veterans and a third 'in honor of all our men and women who served our country,' including eight current conflicts," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"With over 1,000 in attendance, the parade from Central Square and a crowded Woburn Common laid testimony to the city's remembering and honoring the veterans of both conflicts.

"In a two-hour parade and major ceremony, the city focused on all its veterans and especially to those who made the supreme sacrifice ... In the process, three new monuments were dedicated: one to Vietnam veterans, an Iraq / Afghanistan monument to those who served in Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom and a third, a memorial to honor the deceased in the Iraq/Afghanistan conflicts.

"The Vietnam monument contained the names of 13 fallen servicemen and the Iraq/Afghanistan memorial had the name of First Sgt. Keith A. Callahan who died January 24, 2007 in Iraq. Sgt.

Callahan's wife, Dody, and children were present for the dedication...

"The day was a defining moment as the Vietnam-Iraq/Afghanistan monuments were moved behind the World War II and to the rear of the WWI statue at the west end of Woburn Common. All are clustered in an ellipse between the two other monuments.

"Mayor McLaughlin noted the 'major debt of gratitude' the city and the country owed to the veterans. 'Some have come back to know just joblessness and health issues,' he said. McLaughlin urged everyone to support local organizations supporting the troops like the VFW, DAV and the American Legion ....

BETTER DIET NOW (AS IN YOU MIGHT WANT TO)

"Put your glad rags on and...hop over to Sonic? Yes the popular carhop fast food restaurant plans to open its second Massachusetts location in Wilmington at 220 Main Street" in the very near future, according to the "Wilmington Town Crier."

The Planning Board has approved the plans for a Sonic Drive-In, but with more than 30 conditions the franchise will have to satisfy for the permit.

"The project, located on a 2.65-acre parcel, will be sandwiched between the new CVS store and the McDonald's restaurant. The project proposes to remove the existing 4,700 square foot building in the front of the site and replace it with a new 1,728 square foot sonic restaurant.

"The restaurant offers no inside seating. Instead, patrons will park in one of the 25 canopy-covered parking spaces and eat in their cars or grab a table on the covered patio. The concept is that customers do not have to wait in busy drive-through lines and can customize their orders myriad ways, then have each order delivered to their car. A drive-through option will also be available for those that want to grab their grub and go...."

Easy appetizer for weekend entertaining

An appetizer, main course and dessert should involve careful consideration of the time it takes to prepare each course. The following recipe for: "Caramelized Onion Shells" from A.J. Rathbun's "Party Snacks!" (Harvard Common Press) is a delicious appetizer that's also easy to prepare.

Caramelized Onion Shells

Makes 12 Shells

- 3 large sweet onions
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon unsalted butter
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, at room temperature
- 1 cup sour cream
- 1 tablespoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
- 1/2 puff pastry shells

- 1. Cut the onions in half from the stem end down through the root end. Cut each half into 1/4-inch-thick slices.

2. Put the oil and butter in a large skillet over medium-high heat, swirling to combine. Once the butter has bubbled, add the brown sugar. Stir well for 1 to 2 minutes, or until the sugar has melted.

3. Add the onions to the skillet and stir well (it will be a big pile at first) to coat all the onions. Sauté for 5 minutes, stirring regularly. Reduce the heat to medium-low and continue cooking the onions for 30 to 35 minutes, stirring occasionally to keep them from sticking, until they're golden brown.

4. Put the cream cheese, sour cream, pepper, and salt in a large bowl and mix well. Add the cooled onions and stir until well combined. Cover and put the bowl in the refrigerator for at least 1 hour.

Athletes & Activities

by Paul Feely

SPORTS SHORTS

*MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA: When was the first college football bowl game played? Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

*SOPHOMORE GOALIE SCOTT BARCHARD (READING, MA/CHOATE ROSEMARY HALL) of the Tufts University hockey team saved 115 of the 119 shots taken at him during two games over the weekend, including a school-record 63 saves at Saint Anselm College on Saturday afternoon. This spectacular performance has earned Barchard New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC) Player of the Week honors.

At New England College on Friday night, Barchard stopped 52 of 53 Pilgrim shots (98.1 percent) as the Jumbos won 3-1. Less than 24 hours later, his 63 saves against the Hawks on 66 shots (95.5 percent) helped the Jumbos take a 4-3 overtime victory. The weekend sweep of four points has Tufts (4-2-1 overall, 2-1-1 NESCAC/ECAC East) tied for fourth place in the conference early in the 2009-10 season. The Jumbos have won four in a row overall.

For the two games combined, Barchard recorded a .966 save percentage and a 1.97 goals against average. He stopped all 27 New England College shots in the second period on Friday. At Saint Anselm, he made 58 straight saves before the Hawks scored in the third period. The 63 total saves surpasses the former record of 60 set by James Kalec against Colby in February 2005. Barchard's previous single-game high was 59 saves last season versus Babson.

This is the second conference Player of the Week award for Barchard. He was honored in February of last year during a season in which he set the Tufts mark for saves in a season with 862.

Three weeks into the new season, Barchard ranks second in the league with a .953 save percentage. His 424:56 minutes played is the most in the league and is over four times more than save percentage leader Chris Rossi of Bowdoin. Barchard has a 2.26 goals against average after seven games. He has allowed 16 goals while making 322 saves so far.

*SENIOR JACQUI BARRETT (WOBBURN) placed second in the shot put and led three UMass Lowell women's track and field athletes who topped the Division II and III fields in their events at the Harvard Invitational at the Gordon Track & Tennis Center.

The non-scoring meet drew schools and athletes from all three NCAA divisions as well as many athletes representing postgraduate track and field clubs.

The meet was also UMass Lowell's final of the semester. The schedule resumes on Sunday, Jan. 10 at the Dartmouth Relays.

Barrett, who provisionally qualified for the NCAA Championship last weekend at the Northeastern Jay Carisella Invitational, placed second overall and tops among Division II-III throwers with a distance of 43 feet, 5.0 inches. Barrett's result was just behind independent thrower Lisa Wilson, who threw 43' 11.25".

Sophomore Bethani Staiti (Barre, MA) placed sixth with a toss of 38' 7.75" while freshman Robyn Ciriello (Salem, NH) placed ninth with a throw of 37' 6.75".

Sophomore Ashley Zielinski (Manchester, NH) took second (first) in the 60 meter hurdles in 9.14 seconds, just behind Katherine Sherman of Northeastern, who won in 8.99. Zielinski also placed seventh in the 200 meter dash in 26.55 seconds.

Freshman Sharon Cunningham (Foxboro, MA) also did well in the sprints, placing second in the 400 meters in 59.12 seconds, just behind Karlie Dean of Sacred Heart (58.49).

SOPHOMORE NICOLE G I A Q U I N T O (WINCHESTER) placed fourth overall (second) in 60.01 seconds while senior HEATHER MCCARTHY (BURLINGTON) placed ninth in 62.16.

Senior Katrina Lutkus (Lowell, MA) led three River Hawks in the top eight places in the 60 meter dash. Lutkus took fifth in 8.03 seconds while sophomore Cachet Chesson (Randolph, MA) placed seventh in 8.17 and senior Sharikka Finley-Moise (Lexington, MA) eighth in 8.19.

Chesson also took sixth in the long jump with a distance of 17' 3.25".

Other results included that of sophomore Chrissy Silvar (Fitchburg, MA), who took fifth in the pole vault as she cleared 10' 11.75"; and JUNIOR SARAH BONOMO (TEWKSBURY), who placed seventh in the 3,000 meters in 11:00.19.

*Need some help with this week's question? It was the first Rose Bowl.

*Four men's lacrosse players, headed by first-team selection CORY SPINALE (WAKEFIELD, MA) were named to Preseason All-Americans by Inside Lacrosse.

Spinale was a first-team selection, while NICK MAGGIO (WINCHESTER, MA) earned second-team honors, and Michael Balbuena (Falmouth, MA) and Shane Mahar (Slingerlands, NY) were honorable mentions. The four selections are the most among any Northeast-10 team, and one more than the defending NE-10 Champion Le Moyne Dolphins.

"It shows that we have a very talented team returning and expect to contend for the National Championship again this year," said head coach Mike Morgan. "Nick, Cory, Shane and Mike have all worked very hard and we are happy for them that they were mentioned in this elite group. I believe this core group along with many other talented upperclassmen as well as our incoming class, can make this a very successful year."

Spinale, who is a two-time Northeast-10 all-conference selection and an All-American in 2008, is the lone goaltender on the first team. Now a senior, he was 14-3 with a .633 save percentage and a 7.25 goals-against last season.

Maggio emerged as Merrimack's top faceoff specialist in his freshman campaign in 2009 and earned all-rookie team honors by the Northeast-10. He won 61% of his draws and chipped in with a goal and four assists offensively.

Balbuena, an all-conference second-team selection in 2009, was sixth in the conference with 41 points (28 goals, 13 assists). He enters his junior season with 47 goals and 31 assists in his 32-game career.

Mahar, a junior for the 2010 season, emerged as a premiere defender in 2009, causing 15 turnovers and tallying 31 ground balls. His lone goal was the game-winner in the Northeast-10 Semifinals against Bentley.

The Merrimack men's lacrosse team advanced to its first-ever Final Four in 2009, losing just three times, while posting a 14-3 record. Led by third-year head coach Mike Morgan, they will open the 2010 season at C.W. Post, the 2009 defending champion on February 27 at 12 p.m.

*ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: Michigan beat Stanford 49-0 in the first Rose Bowl, way back on January 1, 1902.

Schools From S-1

strict sustainability plan for the latter 50% of funds for use by state or further distribution to participating districts; 50% passed onto participating districts using the Title I formula

The state's overall proposal is centered around five initiatives:

1. Roll out a statewide PreK-12 teaching and learning system to accelerate and personalize student learning, including world-class benchmark/formative assessments, model curriculum, timely data to inform instruction, teacher supports and knowledge sharing

2. Increase college and career readiness among all MA students by enhancing standards and investing in new programs, supports and incentives to drive achievement of those standards

3. Improve teacher and principal effectiveness based on performance by creating a statewide system to measure effectiveness and developing new tools, approaches, and policies to strengthen educator development

4. Ensure effective teachers and leaders in every school and classroom by expanding and strengthening the pipeline of diverse and highly effective teachers and leaders, particularly in STEM, SPED, ELL, and ensuring their equitable distribution

5. Turn around the state's lowest-achieving schools by:
•Building district capacity to prevent schools from entering into Levels 4 and 5 and to sustain progress
•Developing a selective corps of teachers and leaders committed to turning around schools

•Providing intensive social supports to struggling schools
While the promise of needed funds has had some educators dreaming of dollar signs at night, the program hasn't been received everywhere with open arms.

The Massachusetts Association of School Committees (MASC) issued a briefing paper earlier this month on the program and its requirements, which states: "State-based stakeholders across the nation, including not only school boards/committees, but also superintendents, special educators, teachers, paraprofessionals, charter school operators and even parents, were concerned that US Secretary of Education Arne Duncan was being deliberately ambiguous in trying to encourage innovation on one hand, but to appease special constituencies on the other."

The paper goes on to cover the possible implications for Massachusetts, stating, "In distressing financial times, some might advantage of the crisis in order to pounce. We believe the parallel timing of a budget crisis and an opportunity to apply for huge federal grants could be used as a strategy to try to transfer authority and oversight from cities, towns, and regions and even from the state legislature itself to state and federal regulators and administrators."

The current economic crisis has cast a dark cloud over the fiscal strength of public education. Education, social services, health care, criminal justice, and a range of other areas of public programs continue to struggle in their mission to serve children and families as well as the rest of society. The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA), also known as "the Stimulus Bill," has poured millions of dollars into Massachusetts. In FY 2010, much of the state allocation of funding aggregated for education has allowed the Commonwealth to fill a potentially catastrophic deficit in available funds for local education aid (Chapter 70 funding, the Special Education Circuit Breaker, and other programs). As we begin planning for FY 2011 and "brace for impact" from the state's budget gap of over $4 billion as we exhaust the stimulus funding, the RTTT pool of over $4 billion for education is an attractive safety net of finance.

Various state administrators have claimed that state eligibility for RTTT requires the adoption of specific rules, regulations or legislation. Media and public policy makers who have not had access to accurate and fully detailed information or have not reviewed carefully the hundreds of pages of draft and final regulations have yet to question this misleading assumption.

While innovation and implementation of advanced strategies will obviously help any state place itself in higher standing for federal RTTT assistance, we believe that Massachusetts has already met most criteria and is, in fact, among the nation's most strongly positioned states to receive funding."

The MASC based its belief that the state is well-positioned to receive federal funds on the following:

There are several things that states must do in order to have their application considered.

Most importantly, they must have a comprehensive and coherent reform agenda that articulates their goals around the four ARRA principles (i.e. standards/assessments, effective teachers, longitudinal data systems, and raising achievement in low achieving schools). This includes sufficient school district participation and commitment to reach goals—which also includes local collaboration to have no state law prohibiting evaluating teachers and principals on the basis of student achievement or growth.

• Massachusetts has had a national model of a reform agenda in place since 1993.

• Massachusetts law does not prohibit teacher evaluation on the basis of student achievement or growth.

The following are a list of key dates for the Race to the Top and the State Fiscal Stabilization Fund program:

Tips to get through these tough weather months

Avoiding the winter doldrums

When the winter months arrive, it's no surprise many people adopt a more sedentary lifestyle. Colder temperatures keep many people indoors, and those daily trips to the gym are much less likely to occur if the winds are whirling and the snow is falling outside.

However, living a healthy lifestyle is a year-round commitment, and such a lifestyle is far easier to maintain if it's not abandoned once the colder temperatures arrive. In addition, staying disciplined throughout the winter is an effective means of warding off colds and other ailments that can come with the colder seasons. So as winter begins to bear down, consider the following tips for staying healthy and making it to spring feeling better than you ever have.

* Get your shut-eye. While it might seem like getting more sleep in the colder months is akin to a bear hibernating in the winter, that's not entirely true. Don't overdo it when it comes to sleeping, such as hitting the snooze bar and taking long naps on cold days when you're stuck inside. However, be sure to get adequate sleep during the winter months. Getting too little sleep weakens the immune system, which can make you more susceptible to colds, flu and infections.

* Beat viruses to the punch. An essential part of staying healthy in the winter months is prevention. The best way to treat a virus or disease is to prevent it from happening. Though it's common to assume a flu shot is strictly for the elderly or children, that's not the case. Flu shots are available to anyone looking to get one. It might not be easy to get a flu shot depending on where you live, but doing whatever needs to be done to get one is well worth it.

* Exercise. While it's enticing to stay inside on a cold day rather than go to the gym, it's also detrimental to your health. The best way to ensure you continue to exercise through the winter months is to develop a routine. If you exercise after work, bring your gym clothes to work with you so you won't have to go home and change and then be forced to go back outside in order to go the gym. If you must, work out during your lunch break when the skies are bright and the air a little warmer. Whatever your routine, choose it early in the season and stick to it. Once you've established the routine, it will be much easier to maintain.

This week's sampler: The Oakley

Oakley has abundant family living space

Interesting angles and an abundance of family living spaces grace the interior of the Craftsman-style Oakley. Craftsman details are seen in the tapered columns, stone veneer wainscoting, shingled gable ends, and multipaned window uppers.

The spacious gathering areas at center are surrounded by four bedrooms, a home office and a study. Two roomy storage spaces are upstairs, along with a large recreation room that could be an artist's studio, music rehearsal space, or whatever suits.

To enter the foyer, you pass through a nostalgic covered porch. A display niche lines the foyer's right side. Double doors on the facing wall open into a home office with built-in cabinets.

Just past the double doors, the foyer angles off to the right, guiding your steps into a bright and spacious vaulted living room. Framed columns flank the wide opening. Tall windows, multipaned and triangular at their apex, flank the wide two-sided gas fireplace centered on the far wall. Its flames can also be enjoyed from outside, in the vaulted, partially covered patio.

Standing at the kitchen sink, you can join conversations in the living room and serve quick meals at the raised eating bar, while keeping tabs on activities in the patio and nook. A deep walk-in pantry fills one corner.

Right past the foyer, another angled wall clips a right-hand corner, easing movement into a long hallway that leads to the study and kitchen. Three bedrooms and a utility room are at the end.
